KALIMPONG, India (Reuters)—The Chinese Communists today dissolved local governments throughout Tibet and imposed military rule as they consolidated their positions after crushing the Lhasa uprising against their regime.

Reds Pour Weapons
Into Iraq

Editor's Note: UPI Middle East Correspondent Lars Collins was expelled from Baghdad Thursday with two other American correspondents. He reports that the United Nations is pouring tanks and arms into Iran for a major expansion of the Iraqi army.

By LARRY COLLINS

BERUIT, Lebanon (UPI)—The Soviet Union is pouring tanks and arms into Iraq for a major expansion of the Iraqi army by Communist-backed Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

The premier already has put one new, understrength division into the field since he took power in a coup last July, and plans for a second already have been completed.

The new divisions were scheduled to receive Soviet arms, which have been arriving steadily during the past eight months. The most recent shipment arrived at Basra last weekend and included 34 tanks.

SIXTH SHIPMENT

It was the sixth Soviet ship-load of arms since the coup and brought to 150 the number of Russian tanks now being readied for use by the army.

This is double the number of tanks in the late King Faisal's pro-Western army and enough to outfit a full Soviet-style mechanized division. The tanks include about 100 old-style T-34 tanks and 50 of the newer T-54 models.

CZECH PISTOLS

In addition, the Soviets have delivered to Iraq about 20,000 Czech machine pistols, anti-aircraft guns, light and medium field artillery pieces, small arms, mortars and motorized transport.

At least 100 Soviet army officers and men are in Iraq on a training mission to instruct the Iraqi army in the use of the new weapons.

They replaced the British military mission which used to train Iraq's British and American-equipped army.

Thus far, there has been no sign that the new equipment has been integrated into the army on a large-scale, but some Czech machine pistols made their appearance in Baghdad last week.

Blockade Studied

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Washington Evening Star said today the United States is considering a naval blockade of Russia in the Baltic and Black Sea areas if the Soviet Union cuts off the West's access to Berlin.

A PRAYER MADE WITH FEET

Modern-day pilgrims carrying a replica of the cross from Nanaimo to Victoria were south of Duncan and "still going strong" at noon today. Called the "Pacific Cross" it is being carried on the 80-mile journey by representatives of the Newman Alumni Club, Newman Club, and Nanaimo and Victoria Catholic Youth organizations. Pilgrims are due at St. Andrew's Cathedral Sunday at 11 a.m.

Easter Marchers Bear Giant Cross to City

Symbolizing the journey of Christ to Calvary, 21 modern pilgrims are carrying a replica of the cross 80 miles from Nanaimo to Victoria this Easter weekend.

At noon today the travellers were south of Duncan and "in good working order" on the trip which is expected to end Sunday at 11 a.m. outside St. Andrew's Catholic Cathedral here.

In a "religious exercise, rather than a spectacle" the representatives of various Catholic organizations and one Protestant limped determinedly south on the last stages of their marathon trek.

Spokesman for the party said that no names were being used since "the intent of the trip was not self-glorification."

Objects, he said, were the unity of Christendom, sanctification of the pilgrims, and exiation of sin combined with an intent to "show the cross to people who may have forgotten its significance."

Taking turns carrying the 200-pound cedar crucifix by threes, the pilgrims ranged in age from a boy of 10 to a man of over 40 and included six women.

Spokesman said that the group intend to make the trip an annual one and invited people of all faiths to join them.

Pilgrims Gather For Holy Rites

JERUSALEM (AP)—Easter Week ceremonies today approached a joyous climax with solemn Holy Saturday rites in the Basilica of the Holy Sepulchre at the altar near the scene of Christ's burial and resurrection.

Hundreds of pilgrims and tourists crowded the church within the old walled city of Jerusalem.

They pleaded for safe-keeping of their leader, the Dalai Lama.

Their petition was accepted by the UN department that handles visitors, but since the priests are non-governmental in status there is nothing the UN can do on their motion except serve as the background for their presentation.

POPE JOHN PRAYS FOR PEACE

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope John tonight appealed to world leaders to "guarantee respect for the fundamental rights of the human person" in the first Easter message of his reign.

The Pontiff, speaking from his apartment in the Vatican Palace to an audience of millions over radio and television, declared:

"We offer a prayer that peace, the daughter of gentleness and goodwill, may establish a lasting rule among the nations made ever anxious by the clouds which repeatedly darken the horizon."

The Pope added that he prayed also for those Roman Catholic bishops, priests, nuns and faithful—"the most dear to us of all who, deprived of their families, their homeland, of liberty itself, are living and painful witness of the evils which afflict the human race because of the lack of true peace and its proper fruits."

The Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, Most Rev. Alberto Gori, entered the church at 6:30 a.m. to preside at the rites of the blessing of the fire—symbolic of Christ as the light of the world—at the stone of anointment where Christ's body is said to have been anointed after his death on nearby Calvary.

Outside, warm spring sunlight flooded the basilica courtyard as Christians of many denominations from all corners of the globe prepared to celebrate the anniversary of Christ's resurrection.

Mother, Baby Flee Wrong Way

REVELSTOKE, B.C. (CP)—A mother and her 10-month-old baby who fled from their home because it was threatened by a landslide died Friday when an elderly couple when the slide struck the house in which they took refuge.

The four victims, Mrs. Herman Schuetze and her infant son Eric, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pletsch were burned to death when the furnace of the Pletsch home burst into flames moments after it was toppled.

OCCUPANTS TRAPPED

The slide turned the home on its side, trapping the four occupants inside. Volunteer firemen, who were unable to put out the blaze, said the victims survived the impact but died in the flames.

The Schuetze home was untouched by the slide.

Mr. Schuetze and his fellow workers ran to the overturned house and attempted to get inside but the flames forced them back. Volunteer firemen and 200 residents of the town, 440 miles east of Vancouver, went to the scene but were too late to help.

The 100-yard-wide slide of snow, earth and rocks swept workman Nick Brunetti down the slope, known as CPR Hill. He escaped uninjured.

A public works official visited the Schuetze home after a resident of the neighborhood said the hillside apparently had been weakened by recent heavy rain. He found pressure threatening the basement.

FAMILIES EVACUATED

Fifteen families living in the neighborhood were evacuated following the tragedy and a highway department crew examined the area to determine whether the Trans-Canada Highway had been weakened and assess the likelihood of further slides.

Police said surface water released by the first slide was weakening the whole mountain side. They said no one would be allowed in the area until it had been examined.

The evacuated families were provided with shelter in homes and public buildings in the town.

Mr. Pletsch, a retired CPR crewman, came here from Woodstock, Ont., 40 years ago. Surviving are two sons, Earl of Vancouver, and Norman Severtson said Stephen J. Auburn of Portland was charged with mailing lottery material.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bowling with calm precision, Vancouver's Elsie Jackson won the Western Canada women's five-pin bowling championship today, including a perfect game in her total of 2,405.

Police said surface water released by the first slide was weakening the whole mountain side. They said no one would be allowed in the area until it had been examined.

ASKS 'FAIR DEAL' FROM PM

Smallwood Offers to Quit

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—

Premier Smallwood said today that if Prime Minister Diefenbaker will start treating Newfoundland "fairly and decently" and give it "a fair deal" he will resign when the legislature reopens Tuesday.

He said he made the offer on the assumption that Mr. Diefenbaker's actions in connection with the loggers' strike and the limitation of financial assistance were prompted by a grudge against Mr. Smallwood.

"If Mr. Diefenbaker is acting toward us the way he does because of a grudge against me," Mr. Smallwood declared, "I new make this offer through The Canadian Press that if he'll treat Newfoundland fairly and decently and give us a fair deal I'll resign on Tuesday."

For the last two or three years, the premier said, his

$3 Million Damage In Quebec Blaze

BLACKPOOL, Que. (UPI)—Customs officials estimated the toll at more than $3 million today following a Friday night fire that destroyed 10 loaded trailer trucks and a transport company's warehouse at this border community about 40 miles from Montreal.

Firemen from LaCelle, Que., and Champlain and Rouses Point, N.Y., teamed with local crews to fight the three-hour fire that wrecked a 900-foot building.

H-Bomb Protest March

READING, Eng. (Reuters)—The Alderman marchers about 2,500 persons on an Easter weekend "ban the H-bomb" 53-mile protest trek to London caused traffic chaos here this morning.

"highest ambition" had been to get out of politics and go back to writing. Now such a move would mean that he was "deserting my job, deserting Newfoundland."

A formal dinner scheduled for next Tuesday to mark Newfoundland's 10th anniversary of confederation has been cancelled. Organizers announced that it would be replaced with a dinner honoring Premier Smallwood. They said money would be refunded on request to any of the 600 people who bought tickets to the anniversary dinner.

The announcement said the dinner was cancelled because of the federal government's grants decision which violated the terms of confederation and "thus left nothing to celebrate."

THIS WORLD OF OURSPeople and Things

LONDON—Worshippers at a Good Friday service Friday night sipped beer while they sang hymns to rock 'n' roll music.

The service, organized by six Anglican parish priests, was held in the dance hall section of the Rose Tavern and members of the congregation nipped out to the bar and brought back a beer when they felt thirsty.

"We are aiming at taking the Easter message to people who are not in church and we believe this is the way to do it," explained Rev. Geoffrey Beaumont, 55.

"I see no reason why we should not use the rhythm of the day to sing hymns and I see no reason why the congregation should not sip beer if they want to."

FORGERY TRIAL TOLDLawyer's Senses 'Alcohol-Dulled'

A Victoria lawyer accused of forgery was described as "a man of very superior intelligence whose senses had been dulled by alcohol and hardened of arteries" by a psychiatrist in Assize Court Thursday.

Testimony by Dr. Douglas Alcorn came on the second day of the trial by Elmer Finland, 64, of 948 Old Esquimalt Road, charged with forging two signatures on parental consent forms submitted for a marriage licence by an underage couple.

Finland was said to be a "chronic alcoholic" who sometimes "became confused and could not remember events that took place in his recent past life."

Dr. Alcorn said Finland suffered a distinct loss of memory and that his brain had been affected by arteritis sclerosis or hardening of the arteries.

"This would have affected his work," he said, "and certainly his judgment would have been impaired. His capacity to carry out his law practice would also be impaired to a degree, but I expect he could carry out duties of a routine nature."

David Williams, prosecutor: "Does arterial sclerosis affect one's mental health?"

Dr. Alcorn: "Yes."

Prosecutor: "But aren't there hundreds of people wandering around the streets with this condition?"

"Yes."

LACK OF JUDGMENT

Dr. Alcorn said he had known the accused for several years, and had first noticed a deterioration in his judgment "about seven or eight years ago."

Questioned by Mr. Williams, the psychiatrist said this deterioration had been evident in "some lack of good judgment in a certain case in which we were both concerned," adding, "I expect any solicitor to have superior judgment."

The psychiatrist's testimony defence the defence. Mr. Williams then recalled several earlier witnesses, all of whom said Finland had not shown signs of drunkenness or other effects of alcohol when they saw and spoke to him Jan. 14 and 15, when the alleged offence took place.

SAME WRITING

Earlier, handwriting expert James Beatty testified that fathers' signatures had been written by the same person who filled in the body of the forms.

(Evidence heard earlier in the trial indicated Finland had completed the body of the forms).

Mr. Beatty said further that the signatures alleged to be those of the fathers of the under-age couple as they appeared on the forms were not the same as specimen signatures of the two fathers.

Earlier, Mr. McKenna called seven character witnesses. They included lawyer and Victoria MLA George Gregory, 2990 Beach, lawyer William H. M. Haldane, 2390 San Carlos, former city alderman Frances Greville Mulliner, 850 Cormorant, teacher and social worker Mary Ellen Morgan, 729 Pemberton, retired municipal worker Joseph Harper, 488 Admirals, retired bank manager Dugald MacGregor, 2950 Lansdowne, and Esquimalt police sergeant James Kemp Smart, 508 Lamppost.

They testified to Finland's "excellent reputation, integrity and character."

Mr. Justice A. E. Lord was to charge the jury today.

U.K. SOCCER LEAD CHANGESWolves Regain First*(Friday's scores, Page 11)

LONDON (Reuters) — Wolverhampton Wanderers, shooting for their second straight First Division championship in the English Soccer League, bounced back into top place today with a 2-1 victory over Preston North End.

Rebuilt Manchester United, champions in 1956 and 1957 and all-but wiped out in the Munich plane disaster a year ago, dropped back to second place with 21 points—three below Leicester City and five back of Aston Villa.

Rangers have 48 points, Hearts 44 and third-place Motherwell 38. All have played 31 games.

Blackpool was defeated 3-1 by West Bromwich Albion.

At the other end of the standing, Leicester City scored a key 3-1 victory over Portsmouth while Aston Villa was stopped 2-1 by Everton. With the two tail-end clubs facing relegation to the Second Division, Portsmouth now trails the pack with 21 points—three below Leicester City and five back of Aston Villa.

Wolverhampton was on top all the way at Preston, goals by Mike Lill at the 17 and 28-minute marks giving the leaders all the scoring they needed.

Alec Farrall scored a penalty goal for Preston early in the second half.

Rangers continued their winning way in Scotland's First Division and maintained their four-point lead by beating Motherwell 2-1 in a hard-fought match.

West Ham United climbed past Blackpool into fourth place by edging third-place Arsenal with 42 points and West Ham with 41.

'Disgusting' UBC Paper Brings Faculty Probe

VANCOUVER (CP) — The editor of the University of British Columbia tri-weekly newspaper "Ubyssey" has been ordered to appear before the university's faculty discipline committee next week to answer charges that the latest edition of the newspaper was sacrilegious and "disgusting".

Al Forrest was ordered by the committee to appear next Thursday.

The order was issued after the university's student council suspended the entire editorial board and staff of the newspaper from further participation in its publication.

University president Dr. Norman MacKenzie said he thought the edition, published

Thursday, was in extremely bad taste.

The suspensions were ordered by the student council after publication of what is known as the "goon edition," the last edition of the year and generally comprised of humor and satire.

The objections were centred on three photographs.

One pictured three cheer leaders standing around a totem pole with the caption, "Look at those nail holes in His hands."

A second showed a huge mechanical scoop working on the campus and underneath the words, "The tomb is empty."

The third pictured a girl walking through a field with a flock of chickens following. The caption read, "What have you done with him?"

Two of the pictures appeared on the same page as a story headed "Ubyssey Easter service for the whole family."

Peter Meekison, Student Council president, said the newspaper "has gone too far this time."

"Some pages were unbelievably disgusting . . . and sacrilegious."

Mr. Forrest said he did not see the newspaper before it was published and that he personally thought the pictures were "quite strong, and they are not my view of Easter."

'NO WORSE'

Judy Fraim, the newspaper's managing editor, said the edition was "no worse than any other good editions."

She said three or four students worked on the editions. A university official said if the persons who produced the edition are not identified the whole staff would probably be fired.

Sixteen students were affected by the Student Council suspension order and a full investigation has been ordered. Discipline to the extent of expulsion from the university is possible.

The Alma Mater Society will put out a special edition next week, apologizing for the "goon edition," and students who contributed articles to the controversial edition will be asked to write apologies.

U.S. MISSILE RANGE EXTENDED

Victoria Daily Times SAT. MARCH 28, 1959

A-Sub Surfaces at North Pole

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nuclear submarine Skate today is heading homeward after proving that atomic subs can punch through the north polar ice cap within missile range of Russia at any time of the year.

Missile-firing submarines are not expected to join the fleet for more than a year. But nuclear subs will be able to manoeuvre effectively under Arctic ice regardless of the season.

The navy announced Friday that the Skate had completed a 12-day voyage under the ice cap and in the process smashed through the ice several times to come to the surface.

The 267-foot submarine surfaced 10 times during its 3,000-polar journey either in open lifts in the ice or through thin spots in the ice pack.

Once, on March 17, the Skate surfaced at the North Pole.

Among the objectives, the navy said, was to obtain data on under-ice conditions in winter temperatures and to chart the bottom of the Arctic Ocean.

On surfacing at the North

Pole, the Skate's crew scattered the ashes of Sir Hubert

Wilkins, the noted Arctic explorer who died last December.

Mr. Daoust said that while here the ex-rebel leader may also try to negotiate the purchase of 10,000 Canadian-made farm tractors.

Resurrection

ON THIS EASTER THE DAFFODILS are blooming at Beacon Hill as gloriously as Wordsworth pictures them. The flowering plums and cherries are breaking into blossom. The red currant has untied the silken tassels of its purse and hyacinths are lifting royal spikes in private gardens.

Fresh green brightens the tips of branches and returning birds swing there, not yet in full song, but chirping in that test of notes which is nature's symphony tuning up.

The tired grass of winter yields to new growth in the fields and the woods are stirring.

A redwing blackbird strikes his bell tones in a scrub oak thicket, away.

where the dog-tooth violet pushes into flower among the dried stalks of last year.

In the countryside water tinkles its course to lower ground, and on the rocks lush moss is spongy with moisture.

There is a surging urgency in the earth. The time of growth is upon us. After the season of deep sleep, the awakening, the rebirth, is here. That which seemed dead is quickened.

The miracle of spring draws once again its yearly parallel to the sublime proof of faith that sustains Christian man. Nature itself repeats the story of that glorious morning when those who came to the tomb found the stone rolled away.

Let us then, each Easter time, Thinking of such joys sublime, Talents and possessions bring As an offering to our King Who for us from Heaven came To deliver us from shame, From all sin and Satan's power And from dread of death's dark hour. Ever be His Name adored, Jesus, our triumphant Lord.

A Vital Question of Unity

WHATEVER THE RIGHTS and wrongs of the current labor controversy in Newfoundland, one fact is readily recognizable. The economy of the province is in desperate straits. Forty per cent of the working force is reported to be without employment, plans for establishment of a badly needed third paper mill have just been abandoned, the mining and fishing industries are declining, there is general anxiety and concern among the people.

It is against this critical background that the struggle between Premier Smallwood and the International Woodworkers union has been waged. It is against the same background that Prime Minister Diefenbaker announces the special federal grant of $8 millions a year to Newfoundland, recommended by the royal-commission set-up under Newfoundland's terms of union with Canada, will be discontinued after 1962.

Coming on the heels of other recent exacerbations, it is almost as though Mr. Diefenbaker were deliberately inviting the anger of the tenth province. The Federal Government's attitude toward Premier Smallwood's anti-IWA policy, its eleventh-hour rejection of Newfoundland's request for R.C.M.P. reinforcements, still burn in the Newfoundlanders' consciousness to reinforce other resentments arising from economic misfortune and alleged political slights.

There are strong grounds for the claim that by his refusal to extend the payments Mr. Diefenbaker is breaking the confederation contract. It will be regarded as a breach by all Newfoundlanders and most Canadians. Responsibility for the payments for five years ending in 1962, and rising to a maximum of $8 millions a year, has been accepted by the Federal Government. But Mr. Diefenbaker argues that the terms of union do not specify a definite period of years for the payments nor that they should be continued indefinitely. The latter procedure is recommended by the commission set up for this purpose. Mr. Diefenbaker chooses to ignore it.

Here was an opportunity for statesmanship—a chance to assure Newfoundland that it is not an orphan among the provinces, that it is not a poor relation to be given secondary consideration. It could have been made evident that Canada is determined to help the tenth province, raise its living standard and remove any sense of second-class citizenship that might be felt there.

Instead, the Prime Minister has affronted the people of Newfoundland and laid himself open to a charge of breach of contract and faith. This is no slight matter of political manoeuvring or party sparring. A vital issue of national unity is involved, reaching into the old and fundamental problem of Canadian nationhood. Mr. Diefenbaker has fumbled it badly so far.

"I've been around for only a year or so," he remarked, depositing the heavy sword on his figure on a soft clump of arabis, "but I observe how ill equipped you are for the sort of work you try to do. If nature had intended you to grovel in the earth she wouldn't have built you nearly six feet high and perpendicular. In fact, I can't think what she did build you for. Not, certainly, for the life that you men are living today."

"How's that again?" I said.

"WELL, you weren't built for efficient locomotion, that's sure," said Century Sam, "or you would have had four legs, like us. So you mainly travel by automobile, until your two indifferent legs are virtually unused and vestigial and you weren't built for automobiles either. You're cramped and uncomfortable in them and haven't even the sense to make them with sufficient leg room. Only a dog is comfortable in a car."

"So far as I can see," said Century Sam, "man is properly designed for only one posture, in a chair, in front of a television set. Such is the end of your aeons of evolution—an obsolete machine of flesh parked in front of an electrical machine of moving shadows. You have my sympathy."

"THANKS very much," I said, becoming conscious of a sharp pain in my knees and vertebrae...

"And you obviously can't get much fun out of life," Century Sam went on, "when you have no sense of smell, can hardly detect a friend or enemy at a distance of ten feet and, at this very moment, are quite unaware of the symphony of springtime perfume all around you. You can't hear anything but the most obvious sounds, your ears being so absurdly small. You can't enjoy the innocent pleasures of the appetite either. Why, you can't even digest an ordinary bone. It's really too bad."

"We have compensations," I ventured but without much conviction.

"I can't imagine what they may be," said Century Sam. "Clearly they can't be intellectual, for if nature had given you anything but the most primitive intelligence man's affairs wouldn't be in their present ghastly mess. Take us dogs on the other hand. Our affairs are in perfect order and always have been. No trouble at all, no canine crisis, no summit conferences, no bombs."

"I DON'T mention our superiority in any boasting spirit, you understand," said Century Sam. "I realize that we are simply the favorite child of mother nature who, as you probably realize, is a quadruped, and therefore, prejudiced in our favor. Bipeds like you could hardly expect our special gifts."

Century Sam shifted his cigar-shaped form to a more comfortable position on a bed of daffodils and added: "Having been endowed with a practical sort of mind, a reasoning power denied to you, we waste no energy in futile labor, we refuse to be slaves as you are, we watch no time clock, we eat and sleep as we please, we seldom kill one another. Whereas you spend half your time and energy preparing to destroy yourselves altogether."

"Well, I dare say your species won't be missed. Still, I regret it. You men are amusing, in a melancholy sort of way, and in all those million years of evolution you tried so hard to become inhuman. It was a good try but hopeless from the start."

"IN your case nature just made one of her occasional mistakes. She lacked experience in those days, she hadn't yet evolved her masterpiece, the dog. And the dog, I suppose, was inevitably designed to make man his slave. Only a superior creature could compel man to feed him, for nothing, to shelter him, let him put mud on the floor and hair on the furniture, to hire a veterinarian when he is sick, to bury him, with heartbreak, when he dies."

"In a word," said Century Sam, "man does the best he can with his inadequate equipment and I want you to know we appreciate him. But don't let me interrupt your patriotic gardener's attempt to alter the unalterable scheme of nature, a familiar human aberration at this season."

And he waddled away, dragging his chest and ears along the earth. The man who is owned by Century Sam informed me later that the Basset Hound had a good disposition but no shred of intelligence.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

It Made Victoria So Dear and So Friendly to a Boy

IN these days when so much is made of the strange cult of "bigness" it is a salutary thing to remember the neighborliness of small towns. It is good to remember a time before chambers of commerce became possessed of an obsession to make every city bigger and bigger as though there was something inherently advantageous in sheer size. Now in our metropolitan cities almost none knows his neighbor; people roost in Sivertz multi-storyed apartment blocks and live entirely to themselves. In a crowded elevator two men who live in adjacent suites may break the rule sufficiently to bid each other a curt "good morning."

The morning and evening throngs that squeeze themselves into buses pay not the slightest attention to those on either hand who tread on their toes and jostle them for weary miles.

In my boyhood and youth it was my good fortune to live in Victoria which was just big enough to possess all the amenities (at least enough to satisfy any boy) and yet was small enough so that one knew a score, or two score faces in any half-dozen blocks on Government, Fort, Yates or Douglas Streets.

Street car motormen knew all their patrons, or as one old timer called them—his parishioners. Men like Bob Dewar, later to be an alderman, who piloted an Oak Bay street car for years and years watched little boys and girls grow to be big boys and girls and finally to be men and women—Victoria's citizens. Dozens of times he had waited for some belated passenger knowing full well that he had to be at his office or work at just such-and-such a time.

Bob's long, lantern-jawed face would break into a merry smile as he chattered the tardy rider. And I name him simply because so many should remember Bob Dewar not because his action was in any way singular. A dozen motormen did the same and maintained a jealous watch over the affairs of their riders.

Yet that is what he did. So did Mr. J. A. Mara, a staid, successful business man when I knew him by sight; and so did Mr. McMicking's brother Thomas.

It was hard, too, to see in Sir Frank Barnard the tough-fibred man—who pioneered transportation from Yale to the gold fields of the Cariboo—whose Barnard's Express was synonymous with safe and sure carriage of people, mails and gold.

When I knew their names and knew the men by sight they were mainly in the evening of their active lives and strolled easily and casually on our streets as though they knew that each had left a firm imprint on the city.

Down near the post office, focal point for merchants and traders of all sorts, one might see Thomas N. Hibben majestically making his way toward his book and stationery store and by sharp contrast see Captain George Heater coming across James Bay bridge with a rolling gait as though he were still on the deck of a sealing schooner.

Young Harry Pooley might be heading for the Union Club with his inevitable primrose trucked in his buttonhole—as his father, C. E. Pooley had done before him—a lovely, dainty badge.

This was one of the things that made Victoria so dear and so friendly to a boy—the kind-and-homely faces of men who had done well and who also loved the rock-ribbed city.

'CANADA MADE ME,' SAYS MR. LEVINE

Something Else to Offer Besides Squalor and Materialism

A FEW months ago Norman Levine, an expatriate Canadian writer living in Cornwall, published a book called "Canada Made Me," which is undoubtedly at this moment the most discussed and least-read book by a native author. It is being discussed because of the unflattering picture it gives of life in Canada; it is little read for the excellent reason that copies of it are almost impossible to obtain.

Time Magazine (Jan. 19) explained the book's scarcity by charging that McClelland & Stewart of Toronto were distributing British-printed copies only to honor a commitment to London's Putnam & Co. Ltd. Snapped Publisher Jack McClelland: "A misleading picture of the country."

As to the book itself, which is apparently such a searing document that we oughtn't to be allowed to read it, I can only say that the best way to discredit it would be to circulate a million free copies. In the first place, it is not really about Canada at all, but about Mr. Levine. Mr. Levine is clearly a very dull man, so it is no surprise to find that the book is a very dull book.

Not only is Mr. Levine dull, he is also very bitter; and as if that were not enough of an obstacle to writing a good travel book, he spent most of his publisher's advance before he left England, so that he tried to see Canada on a TCA travel pass and whatever money he could bum, borrow or scrounge.

If it is true that the Canadian distributor is exercising an indirect censorship by keeping the book virtually off the market I can only say that the action is as contemptible as it is shortsighted. I agree with Mr. McClelland that the book gives a misleading picture of Canada, but I cannot believe that that is any reason for trying to suppress it.

The book came to my attention because the CBC asked me to take part in a discussion on it. When I tried to get hold of a copy I found that the Public Library had it, but it was "out"; and that the leading bookstores of the city had sold the single copies they had received from the distributor.

Vancouver was ransacked on my behalf, at first with no success; ultimately Duthie's produced an uncorrected proof, and with that I had to be content. Is not this all rather strange in a free country bursting with private enterprise and dynamic salesmanship?

As to the book itself, which is apparently such a searing document that we oughtn't to be allowed to read it, I can only say that the best way to discredit it would be to circulate a million free copies. In the first place, it is not really about Canada at all, but about Mr. Levine. Mr. Levine is clearly a very dull man, so it is no surprise to find that the book is a very dull book.

Not only is Mr. Levine dull, he is also very bitter; and as if that were not enough of an obstacle to writing a good travel book, he spent most of his publisher's advance before he left England, so that he tried to see Canada on a TCA travel pass and whatever money he could bum, borrow or scrounge.

He flies from east to west, so he can claim to have covered the country in a sense, but since his time on the ground seems to have been devoted to sociological sessions in beer parlors and coffee shops, his picture of Canada is something less than complete.

Halifax is all squalor, Gestapo-like immigration officials and chewing gum stuck to the undersides of cafe tables. Montreal produces a squalid boarding house and a friendly lecher with a pocketful of pornographic properties.

Ottawa, Mr. Levine's home town, sees him laid low with virus pneumonia and occupying his rather fevered leisure with memories of rats, dung and maggots and the old Jewish peddlars from whom he himself is descended. He despises his parents, but he is even more contemptuous of the Jewish children who have worked hard to lift themselves out of the squalor of Murray Street.

In the "Soo" he is tormented by financial worries...and takes quite a shine to a bordello keeper with no nose. (Deformities form a leitmotif in this grubby book: deafmutes, amputees, and other unfortunate seem to surround Mr. Levine wherever he descends from his airplane.) Even his sister had worms, it turns out. Some people have all the luck!

A visit to the Algoma mine furnishes the author with further occasion to describe squalor, with the odd deformity and some vomit thrown in, so to speak. Winnipeg is a kaleidoscope of feeble university professors and lecherous meat-packing operatives, bootleggers and rubbydubs, futility and squalor, and Mr. Levine (with whom the reader is by now pretty irritated) says primly: "Nothing I saw had the brittleness of squalor, drunkenness, lechery and materialism, even though he doesn't choose to see it." I detect what he says, but I do not like it. I detect what he says, but I do not like it. I detect what he says, but I do not like it. I detect what he says, but I do not like it.

Saskatoon is dull, but it enables Mr. Levine to tell a wholly unbelievable

'Not Yet Dangerous'

THEY WERE ONLY TINY news items, just small blocks of type hardly worth a second glance. But they carried implications which may affect every human being on earth. They could have been the preliminary obituaries of the human race.

One item said merely that the content of radioactive Strontium-90 found in Canadian flour has increased from zero, 14 years ago, to as high as 22 units. Strontium-90 is a highly radioactive element produced by nuclear blasts; once initiated, its radioactivity lasts almost indefinitely. The news item added that the level of 22 units is, of course, far from dangerous.

The other item noted that radioactive fallout over Canada has remained at a "fairly high level" for several months. Experts revealed that the count went up when Russia carried out nuclear tests in Siberia—and it HAS REMAINED UP.

There they are. Two small facts—facts of life, they might be called. What will strike the lay reader—and has it not struck the experts as well?—is that the radioactivation of our planet appears to be a one-way process.

How long can it go on before the experts' assurance that "the level is 'not yet dangerous'" can no longer be added to such news items? How do you make the lethal flood waters run back uphill?

The book came to my attention because the CBC asked me to take part in a discussion on it. When I tried to get hold of a copy I found that the author had further occasion to describe squalor, with the odd deformity and some vomit thrown in, so to speak. Winnipege professors and lecherous meat-packing operatives, bootleggers and rubbydubs, futility and squalor, and Mr. Levine (with whom the reader is by now pretty irritated) says primly: "Nothing I saw had the brittleness of squalor, drunkenness, lechery and materialism, even though he doesn't choose to see it." I detect what he says, but I do not like it. I detect what he says, but I do not like it. I detect what he says, but I do not like it.

But you should read the book. I think, to remind yourselves that there is a great deal of avoidable squalor in Canada. And Mr. Levine should be reminded, in his turn, that Canada has something else to offer besides failure, squalor, drunkenness, lechery and materialism, even though he doesn't choose to see it. I detect what he says, but I do not like it. I detect what he says, but I do not like it.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Bands and Bags

WHILE going about its lawful occasions in the Courthouse the other day, this column chanced to intercept a witness whom passed from one waiting witness to another.

"Why?" said the first waiting witness, "on earth do the lawyers wear them long black gowns?"

The second waiting witness allowed as to how he did not know; something about being in mourning for Henry VIII or something maybe.

Which got this column to considering a subject which lawyers take for granted, but which must now and then give non-lawyers cause for wonderment: to wit (as is said) the variety of antiquated clothing one sees in a 20th century courtroom.

To begin with, there's the judge. Here he is attired in the decent sobriety of a simple black Chancery silk gown. Usually, that is. At Assizes and on other high occasions he glitters in a similar article trimmed in bright scarlet, which adds a festive air to the proceedings. But the British Columbia judge, compared to his brethren in England and in some of the other provinces, is but a pale shadow of judicial splendor. Not for us the red robes and ermine hoods, the purple silk and scarlet sash; and we do well enough without these trappings, no doubt. But they do invest the court with a certain impressiveness which does no harm.

Relics of medieval splendor belong also to the bar. The lowly junior barrister has a robe which fair oozes with tradition. It is made of something called "stuff," and is a maze of tucks and ruffles and pleats—and guises (whatever they are). Behind the left shoulder is sewn a little flap; and this flap is attached to a long tape which goes over and down the front, where it gets in the way of sweeping gestures. (A sweeping gesture, by the way, is far more telling in a flapping-black-sleeve than it is in a mere tweed coat.) This flap, so tradition has told us, is the last vestige of a little bag into which those in need of advocacy would drop a sufficiency of coin. The tape is the remains of the drawstring which closed the bag before the litigant could change his mind, thus completing the retainer of counsel without any vulgar display of money changing hands.

Junior barristers would sit outside the bar of the court, with their backs to the public. Not for nothing were they called "utter" or outer-barristers; the bag was useless if it was out of reach. In older days the rows of black backs was reminiscent of taxicabs in rank, waiting for custom.

The lordly Queen's Counsel, in their simple and elegant silk-gowns, have no need of feedbags. Either they are above such sordid trafficking, or else they make their arrangements before coming into court. It would be disrespectful to inquire. Suffice it to say that most of them appear well fed.

The white bands which bench and bar wear in lieu of other neckwear, are merely a relic of the lace jabot of yesteryear. These little strips of linen are common to the two learned professions, for certain clergy wear them as well; but for different reasons. The lawyer's bands are a relic of a fashionable adornment. The bands of the Anglican dean and the Presbyterian—divine are a stern reminder of the argumentative theologians of the Reformation.

And then there are the bags. Those gentle readers familiar with the traffic in Bastion Square have doubtless noted the comings and goings of otherwise decently attired gentlemen carrying enormous great shapeless sacks over their shoulders, for all the world like summer Santas. These people are lawyers, carrying the bags which all lawyers love. The regulation bag, about thirty inches square and equipped with a drawstring made out of an old bathrobe cord, is an impossible container for carrying anything; but it is traditional, and since it is nicely graded as to color, it is handy for ascertaining at a glance the status of the carrier.

Those dignified men carrying green bags are judges. The even more dignified men carrying red bags are QCs, and the ordinary looking characters carrying bags which range from faded turquoise through washed out mauve to dark blue are the ordinary junior barristers, the bluer the newer.

Now you know.

Today on the public library shelves there are 60,000,000 books—better than one book for every man, woman and child in the nation. And last year each library ticket holder took out an average of 25 books.

I wonder if in Canadian public libraries there is a book available for every member of the population?

And while on the subject of books, the name of Richard Llewellyn had cropped up again. Remember him. He wrote one of the big best-sellers of prewar days—How Green Was My Valley. That story of life in a Welsh mining village sold half a million copies and apparently still goes at the rate of 5,000 a year.

Whatever happened to Llewellyn? It appears that after doing a couple more books he went to Hollywood for some script-writing and now lives in Argentina with his American wife.

Reason he's in the news again is that there is a new novel just out by him, called Chez Pavan. It's far removed from the Welsh mines. It's a "Grand Hotel" type story of a high class hotel-restaurant in the Paris of the 1920s.

Also in print with a new one is British adventure writer Alistair MacLean, who has made so much money out of books such as The Guns of Navarone and South By Java Head that he has to live in Switzerland now to avoid tax.

COMPLETE AN EASTER DESIGN

Endeavoring to fashion a new tablecloth for Easter, an embroiderer has reached the half-way point in its design. To see the pattern as it will appear when completed, fill in all squares containing dots on tracing paper for coloring purposes.

EASY-TO-MASTER DRAWING LESSON

It is easy to draw a rabbit or a duck by following the three steps indicated above. Begin by making the egg shapes, figure 1, in each case. Add more lines as in figure 2. Add finishing touches in step three. Erase unnecessary lines.

After you've mastered these, you may wish to try other figures using the same technique.

A STRING STUNT

As a party pastime, produce a piece of stout string or twine three feet long and challenge a guest to perform a stunt. It is to stretch the string as long as he possibly can on the floor, holding it down tightly by putting a thumb over each end. Then, without changing position, touching it with the feet or lifting the thumbs, the idea is to step over the string

Sister is searching for a half dozen Easter eggs. To find them she starts at arrow pointing into the maze. She is to pick them up in 1-2-3-4-5 order, and then return to start place. Can you find her way? Start and finish arrows are in lower left-hand corner.

ROUND 'N ROUND

Can you place the numbers 1 to 19 in the circles above so that the sum of any three in a straight line totals 30?

We'll give you a hint: the number in the centre circle can be counted on both hands.

Time limit: five minutes.

Answer is given below.

Try it on friends and see if they can solve it.

Twenty-one of their associates, hearing of their ill-success, went to the same stream to prove that they were more expert fishermen. They angled for the elusive trout and with the same degree of success they landed just one trout.

HONG KONG—Here in this seaside haberdashery they give you just 30 minutes to drop your bag at the hotel, and then it's off to the tailors.

Get measured first, talk later, said some old Hong Kong hands who came to greet us as we debarked from the winged steed carrying the emblem of the new Japan.

And so we were not very long in the country; maybe 40 minutes or so, when we took the ferry from Kowloon on the mainland across to Hong Kong Island and presented ourselves at the tailoring establishment known as Chan Tuck.

A lady I have come to think of as Lou stood amid a thousand bolts of cloth, squatting tailors, tangled measuring tapes and haystacks of pins.

She wore a simple Chinese sack dress decorated with the medals of past encounters with a bird's nest soup.

"You want East Coast style or West Coast style?" asked the lady known as Lou. She was referring to the shoreline of our native land, long since left behind.

We Fix'

Visitors here for short stays are sometimes hard put to get all their fittings in. Friends of ours excused themselves early the other night. "Have to get up at 6 for a fitting," they said. "Plane's leaving at 8."

And recently, a departing tourist came running into the airport terminal the other day followed closely by a panting Chinese tailor who toted a box. They disappeared into the men's room for a last-chance fitting even as the flight was being called on the loudspeaker.

Back in his own clothes a few minutes later, the customer dashed for the gate while the Chinese bowed him goodbye. "We fix, we send," the tailor said.

Handmade shirts don't take all that trouble, as made by Fenwick's, John Shoemaker, or the irresistible establishment known as Ascot Chang.

Benny's Creations is the moniker of the famous bootemaker in town and ladies' pumps cost $9 handmade in two days. A brocade theatre suit at a ladies' tailor costs about $40 all inclusive.

But no matter what they tell you, get a certificate of origin testifying that the fabric was not manufactured in Communist China.

At the Market

Hong Kong lives largely on Red Chinese vegetables shipped daily over the border and sold in the markets along with sugar cane, ginger, and snake meat from Communist pythons. Oranges from California compete in the market with tangerines as big as grapefruits. Piggies come to market in straw cages suspended on poles carried by ladies who wear black slacks. Pick and shovel work is done by Hakka women who wear straw hats with a floppy fringe, like old-fashioned dampshades. Sidewalk beauty parlors will do madame's hair with glue, a sort of permanent permanent. And bootleg butchers sell chow dog puppies, a delicacy of the table around here if cooked properly with garlic and dried bamboo shoots.

SPORTS DIARY BY Jimmy Cannon

MIAMI—The Yankees were putting on their uniforms in the clubhouse before a game with Baltimore here.

"How is the leg?" Casey Stengel asked Mickey Mantle.

"The Charley horse, I mean."

The manager wasn't referring to the centre-fielder's permanent injuries. The right leg, where the cartilages of the knee were torn in a World Series fall, is wrapped in elastic bandages. The left one was afflicted with osteomyelitis in his youth, but the disease was arrested.

"I can feel it," Mantle replied.

"You want a day off?" Stengel said.

"It's not that bad," Mantle said.

There are some who claim Mantle has more ability than any other player who ever performed in the sport of baseball. They demean last season as an inferior one because he hit only .304, although he led the American League with 41 home runs.

"Why did your average fall off?" I asked because he hit .365 in '56.

"I don't know," he replied.

"I can't tell you."

MICKEY MANTLE

"Are you doing anything to help it?" I asked.

"I'm going to steal more," he said.

He is the fastest man in baseball, but they hold him up because they don't want him to hurt his legs while sliding.

"How will that help?" I said.

"They walk me too much," he said. "A walk and a slide is like a double. Maybe I'll get more good balls to hit at if they know I'm going to steal."

"Isn't that a big gamble?" I asked. "Hurting yourself for an extra base?"

"I got to do something," he said. "My legs were never better last year. I didn't have trouble all year."

This is a guy who enjoys hitting and often he goes for a bad ball instead of taking it for a walk.

He has no theory about adjusting his batting stance this season.

"I'm not as good a hitter as Williams and Musial," said the centre-fielder. "They can figure out things. I can't because I'm a swinger. I hit at a lot of bad balls. I swing too hard. I swing at a lot of balls down the middle and pop them up."

Mickey Is Quite A Ruthless Critic

Mantle never gives himself a break when he discusses his skills.

"I'm not a brain like Williams and Musial," he said. "When I'm up at the plate, I'm just swinging. Compared to them, I'm just fooling around up there. They know all about hitting."

He is a man of burly hardness whose weight never fluctuates much.

"You look like you've been in a gym," I said because he came to St. Petersburg weighing a big-shouldered, small-waisted 197.

"I wasn't in a gym," he said. "I was around the new bowling alleys I got in Dallas."

"You mean you're working at it?" I asked.

"Mostly," he said. "I work behind the desk. I keep score a lot. I just wander around and talk to people."

"Then you must have dieted?" I said.

"No," he said. "I don't watch my food. I eat everything. But take Hank Bauer. Look at the shape he's in. And he doesn't do any special exercises in the winter or diet or anything."

The manager watched Mantle walk out of the clubhouse.

"For the present day," said Stengel, "I would say he has more natural ability than anyone I ever saw."

He paused, the seamed face clenched in meditation.

"He led the league in two things last year," said Stengel. "Home runs and runs scored. Let me tell you something. He could lead it in everything. I mean anything they put in the book. Not just one year. Every year."

Youngsters Prove Coaches Did Jobs

Results of coaching in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association were evident at Royal Athletic Park Friday.

Despite gusty winds that continually disrupted attempted passing attacks, eager youngsters flashed a lot of fine football in the opening day of the annual two-day "Juvenile Soccer Day" program, which was completed today.

Teams from the LIJSA ranks, competing in three lower Island championship matches, two knockout games and three exhibition tussles amply compensated chilled spectators for their discomfort with a series of close and spirited battles.

In a senior match, the Colonist All-Stars defeated the Times All-Stars, 2-0, in the annual match for the Tony Hope Memorial Trophy.

BRILLIANT PLAYS

Perhaps the finest match of the day was clash between Britannia Legion and ANAF Vets for the Division IV lower Island crown.

Both clubs came up with brilliant plays before Britannia grabbed a 2-0 decision on goals by John Dawson and Bob Moysey. Goalie Robin Jeffrey was a standout for the Vets.

Optimists and Eagles also staged a thrilling battle in the Division I lower Island final. Eagles grabbed a 1-0 first-half lead on Gary Lawrence's penalty kick and held the advantage until well into the second half.

Alan Glen counted for Optimists on Pat Mulcahy's pass and halfback Tommy Wyatt, a tower of strength for the winners, scored the second Optimist goal on a corner kick.

SCORES DRAW

Oak Bay Optimists and Esquimalt Legion battled to a scoreless draw in the other lower Island final, but Oak Bay was awarded the Division IV decision on the basis of forcing the most corner kicks in overtime. Goalie Graham Coxon and fullback John Gard-

Talent Was Handicap, So (Sniff) Our Boys Lost

In any sport there are penalties for being too good. This was never more apparent than at Royal Athletic Park Friday afternoon when the Colonist All-Stars registered the soccer upset of the decade by tripping the Times All-Stars in the annual match for the Tony Hope Memorial Trophy.

The 2-0 decision, which gave the morning paper crew its first win in the series and still had the experts along Victoria's boot alley blinking their eyes in disbelief today, was easily explained.

Gale-like, biting winds which whipped across the pitch through the day made good soccer all but impossible. And since skilful play was out of the question most of the time, the Times stars found superior talent was a handicap and the bustling tactics of their rivals perfectly suited to the hit-and-miss exchanges.

DAVIES STARRY

Anchored by the alert net-minding of Al Davies, who has yet to play on a losing team in the annual series between sides selected from Victoria and District Football League clubs, the Colonist crew carved out the victory on first-half goals by right-winger Ced Robb and centre-forward Dick Nelestien.

To be truthful about the whole affair, the "other" paper deserved the win. Managed by Jack Metcalf, the winners were more decisive near the goal and continually had better cohesion between their half-backs and forwards.

Keeping their passes low and under control, the Colonist booters scored both their tallies while facing the wind. Helped by the work of centre-half Joe Robbins and fullbacks Len Anderson and Pete Moran who seldom let manager Alf Tripp's Times Terrors get set

SETTLED DOWN

Don Stewart, guarding the Times goal, also turned in a steady performance and came up with several sparkling saves.

Possibly suffering from overconfidence in the opening half, the Times settled down after the intermission and threatened several times in the closing stages.

Anderson saved what appeared a sure goal late in the game when he headed Bill Acklinson's shot, which had looped past Davies, over the crossbar.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Long Patience Required When Working Clay Soil

In a rather ancient copy of an English gardening publication there was an article on the handling of stiff clay soil, written by a retired Colonel.

He claimed that a clay can have the tilth of a loam if properly worked, and suggested that, from the look of their soil, some gardeners must think they worked in a brickyard.

Heavily stressed, five paragraphs to be exact, was the extreme importance of keeping off clay when it is wet, something we all know but seldom put into practice.

His intense dislike for the average gardener's efforts are shown when he writes: "If the blockheads blessed with a clay soil would cast aside the spade and work it with patience, less time would be consumed in complaining and more pleasure would be had from gardening."

Clays are late soils and nothing will make them early, the Colonel states; but once they are workable their output for the season is superior to that of lighter soils in both quality and quantity, regardless of rain or drought.

All digging was to be done with a fork having four or five tines, preferably round like our manure forks, although possibly a little larger in diameter.

This I could agree with, for I have learned the folly of turning a wet clay with a spade. It undoubtedly spoils the texture of the soil and increases the labor needed to make a tilth anywhere near suitable for seed sowing.

The art of digging was described in detail, and reading it led to the conclusion that we in Canada have little respect for our soils or how they are treated.

A SMART WHACK'

After each forkful is turned it is given, in the Colonel's words, "a smart whack with the back of the tines to make it crumble and provide at one stroke, a tilth which will vie with any of those loams of high repute."

I can vouch for the results the Colonel obtained, although he approached the whole problem scientifically—whereas my experience came from necessity.

With me it was impossible to hand dig a half-acre of clay while all the area was in perfect condition for working. Before the half-way mark was reached, the rest would resemble concrete.

This led to the use of sprinklers, neither specially designed nor controlled, to add moisture and make the clay workable. Invariably the section treated in this manner had the texture of a good loam, and what is more important, it retained this texture throughout the balance of the season.

If the gardener can afford to wait until early May in most years, and late May after a wet spring, he will soon appreciate the saving of effort and the improved tilth which can be obtained.

Unfortunately, the gardening bug bites on the first mild day in March and we find that our patience dries up long before the soil. Until our common sense becomes stronger than the urge to start gardening we shall continue our early digging and late complaining, blockheads that we are!

VANCOUVER (CP) — The eighth annual safety conference of the B.C. pulp and paper industry reported this week the first two months of this year show an accident rate of 6.4 for every 1,000,000 man hours, less than half of last year's 12.7 rate.

Kitchen 'Office' Spells Efficiency

Heaven may protect the working girl, but if she's running a household too, what she really needs is a large helping of ingenious planning.

Our cleverest career types have already mastered the basics—the use of frozen, dehydrated, pre-packaged and "instant" foods; an emphasis on soil-resistant surfaces in the home and soil-and-wrinkle-resistant fabrics in the family wardrobe; advance menu planning tied in with frequent all-encompassing shopping trips; a well-organized schedule of personal grooming.

But there are pitfalls, and one of the most popular is recipes. Ever seen a drawer crammed to the sticking point with bits of paper torn from newspapers and magazines? All those tempting recipes, all those handy dandy household hints—lying fallow because they aren't organized for ready use.

The simple flat plywood unit above offers a tidy and convenient solution. It fits into a small space, but has room for the telephone and its accessories as well as all those recipes. The two recipe drawers have grooved finger-holds for opening and adjustable pronged stops to accommodate just a few or a multitude of recipes.

Try using one for the intriguing things you tear out, the other for those you've tested and decided to keep. Or, if you're already organized, try one for quick everyday recipes, and one for the leisurely weekend entertaining kind.

This handy plywood "home office" could be made by the handyman in your house. Free construction plans are in stock at your lumber dealer's. Paint it perky, and keep it cheerful.

Flower Pots That Breathe

DUNCAN (CP) — Flower pots that breathe are being proposed in a small factory here.

Made of South Sea coral, the pots were developed in Norway 10 years ago. They are being manufactured by a company formed by Cliff Wall, local contractor, and Olav Rosenlund, who came here from Norway with the formula five years ago.

Oil and other materials are mixed with the coral and pots are being turned out at the rate of 400 daily.

The advantage of the pot is that the soil can breathe," said Mr. Wall. "It is porous enough to admit air yet does not leak. Therefore, the soil does not turn sour and there is no need to change the soil."

The company plans to expand and expects soon to run production to 1,000 pots a day for the wholesale trade.

Every pot is hand-made in special moulds and allowed to mature for a week in drying rooms at controlled temperatures.

Mr. Wall says he hopes to establish plants on the Prairies.

The correct use of color in a minor redecorating job can make a major change in the appearance of a small bedroom.

Strong contrasts should be eliminated, and all lines that might tend to divide the room either horizontally or vertically should be avoided.

A greater degree of spaciousness can be achieved in a small bedroom by paneling the walls with either pastel blue or green predecorated hardboard. The paneling and matching moldings are available at lumber yards to insure an over-all color theme.

Generous Storage Space In Family Home Design

This design by architect Roy Sellors of Winnipeg, Manitoba, takes advantage of rear garden and lawn areas. The combination living-dining room and the three bedrooms all overlook the garden while the working area of the house faces the street.

The architect has provided a plentiful supply of cupboard and storage space including a sewing room and linen storage off the open upstairs hall. The front door is well protected from the weather. Best orientation of the house would be obtained with the garage on the northern side of the lot.

The total floor area is 1,236 square feet, excluding garage, and the exterior dimensions are 27 feet, seven inches by 22 feet, five inches. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 517, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Use Planter For Division Of Open Layout

Interior decorators say that planters are one of the most effective ways to divide modern open floor plans.

Although planters have been used for many years, they are especially effective in modern layouts because they outline definite areas but do not eradicate the visual spaciousness of an open plan.

FOR PRIVACY

A well-designed planter can set off a dining area from the main living room. Privacy can be added to a living room if a planter is used to divide the children's area from the space reserved for Mom and Dad.

A home handyman can build a sturdy and attractive planter by facing a simple lumber framework with hardboard in a handsome woodgrain. Pre-decorated hardboard is highly resistant to moisture and hard wear, and it can be cleaned with a damp-wiping.

Storage space can be included in the planter by providing shelves or sliding doors.

Down-to-earth use for last season's hula hoop is discovered by Melanie Johnstone, 5, Des Plaines, Ill., who used it as marker for circular bed of annual flowers following a suggestion from the National Garden Bureau.

You can fill in the list yourself. Turn on all the lights. Make use of every outlet. A small lamp for each will do, and it's not necessary to use both halves of the duplex outlet. Remove one fuse at a time. Note which outlets are left without power. Turn off master switch when changing fuses.

Keep a supply of the proper size fuses near the fuse box. Have a flashlight handy.

WHEN A FUSE BLOWS, it's a good idea to disconnect the items on that circuit before replacing the fuse. After it's replaced, do some quick calculating to discover if you haven't overloaded the circuit. If that's not the case, connect the lamps and appliances one by one. When you reach the one that's defective, the fuse will blow out again.

If you find that the fuse blows out before the circuit is used and as soon as the fuse is installed, then there's trouble in the wiring.

Wise Handy Man Grooms Walls Before Applying Spring Paint

By MR. FIX

Sure sign of springtime is the gentle rustling of catalogue pages as the homemaker scans paint samples prior to having you repaint one or more rooms.

By the time you've considered the fate awaiting you, there'll be just time to get the walls in condition for painting.

Painting should be done during those days when the furnace remains off, a good portion of the day, and before remaining indoors is sheer punishment.

Even a clean wall should be wiped down thoroughly to remove dust. Grease spots around range and sink should be removed.

Doors, woodwork and other wood surfaces should be free of wax. Apply cleaning solution evenly, and wipe off with a clean, damp cloth.

ALL SURFACES should be clean, dry and free of loose particles.

Patch all cracks in plaster surfaces. Hairline cracks are easily repaired by wetting and working in patching plaster with your fingers.

You can, too, purchase plaster-patching material in stick form for repairing tiny surface cracks.

Larger holes and cracks require more preparation. Break away weak, loose plaster. Cut away the inner edges of area so that the hole is larger at the back than the front.

Moisten the old plaster around the area to be repaired. Then fill with fresh plaster, but not quite to the top. After it hardens, wet the new plaster and apply the finish coat of plaster.

With a plaster's trowel smooth the finish coat. Try to make it level with the surrounding plaster.

Once it's absolutely dry, sand it down. Make sure that it's absolutely smooth.

SEAL THE PATCH with a glue size or shellac for small cracks. Sealer prevents the fresh plaster from soaking up the paint.

If the old finish on the wall is a glossy one, dull it by washing with a solution of sal soda. If that doesn't do the trick, use sandpaper or steel wool.

If the previous finish is a water-thinned paint that's likely to dissolve under another coat of water-thinned paint, you'll have to scrub it off with a strong soap solution.

If you leave paper on, bubbles in wallpaper, smooth and repaste before painting.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

SATURDAY: I receive a letter which says: "Your column disappoints me. I had expected a real diary, something intimate about a man who presumably differs from his readers in special way because of his preoccupation with literary expression. But all you are offering is book reviews. I want to know what a writer thinks, reads and does."

Very well, my dear sir, you shall have what you want. Today I chopped ice and made drains in front of my house. Is this literary? Yes, I think Havelock Ellis would have found ample evidence in it of the character-complex he called Undinism.

Writers, Choose Wives With Care

SUNDAY: Lay on my back most of the day, reading, sleeping and daydreaming. Very literary. Some women, however, resent it, so young writers should choose their wives with care. Many a promising career has been wrecked by marrying the wrong sort of woman. The right sort of woman can distinguish between creative lassitude and plain shiflessness.

MONDAY: Read quite a lot of Bear and Glorious Physician, the new novel by Taylor Caldwell (Doubleday). The critics are making sport of it, and as literary art it has no exalted standing, but it is easy to read, and I find myself going on and on, eager to know what happens next.

It is about St. Luke, and thus comes in the category of semi-sacred novels. All the characters are really modern North Americans, gussied up in wigs and beards like a Sunday school pageant dressed by Malabar. But it is spite of its shortcomings it has real narrative movement, and that is something many writers never achieve.

No sign of Our Lord yet, but a lot of hints have been dropped.

TAYLOR CALDWELL

material. This is something non-literary people never understand. They are apt to confuse it with a vulgar, prying nature.

Moral: when you have authors in the house you needn't lock up your spoons or your daughters, but get your diaries into the safe deposit.

TUESDAY: In a short piece about Scott Fitzgerald his friend George Jean Nathan tells how he rummaged around in the Fitzgerald's cellar and there found some of Mrs. F.'s diaries tied up in a bundle. So he read them, and later offered to edit them; but Fitzgerald would not allow it, as he said he gained a lot of inspiration from them for his own work.

The literary world is not conducted according to Marquis of Queensberry rules: if you find somebody's private papers, you immediately root through them, looking for raw material.

Allergy-Afflicted Pipes

THURSDAY: Visited my own dear and glorious physician for a check-up. Hypochondria is the author's neurosis. After the usual all-in wrestling inspection by radar and unmentionable intimacies which a thorough examination involves in this great age of medical science, he pronounced me hale and hearty, except for a chronic allergy which sorely afflicts my gospel-pipe.

The effect of it is to make me speak like Alec Guinness playing Fagin in the film of "Oliver Twist."

As every practising hypochondriac will understand, this disability became much worse after talking to the doctor about it, so I took my special remedy—two No-Nods dissolved in a wineglassful of gin.

FRIDAY: Which is also Good Friday, and I follow the custom of many years by working hard all day as severe a form of mortification as I can manage.

In the evening picked up

George Gissing's "New Grub Street," which is now handily available in World's Classics.

As good and as true a picture of the literary life as I know, but not a book to give to the starry-eyed young who think that the life of an author is a Quest for the Oversoul.

Was struck to rediscover, at the beginning of Chapter 8, this sentence: "Of the acquaintances Yule had retained from his early years several were in the well-defined category of men with unpresentable wives."

What makes one shudder about Gissing is that he does not mean this as irony, or satire, or anything except the bleak truth.

To read him is like looking into one's mirror on these mornings when the white sunshine of spring, unbroken by foliage, strikes upon the irreducible minimum of one's personal beauty, and one realizes that one looks indeed like St. Paul after a gaudy night with the Corinthians.

Perpetuating Errors No Tribute to Marx

MARX AND AMERICA, by Earl Browder. Gollancz. 146 pages.

Mr. Browder was drummed out of the Communist Party in the United States as a notorious revisionist. His crime, as its secretary, had been to try to adapt party dogma and party tactics to the American scene. Instead the party chose to condemn itself to sterility and virtual extinction rather than vary by a hair's breadth from Moscow's writ.

One of the theoretical millstones around its neck was Marx's doctrine of the inevitable impoverishment of the working class. This "absolute general law of capitalist accumulation," even when broadened to include "relative impoverishment," was most laughably wide of the mark in America.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Negro Sculpture Affected Art of Western World

"Sculpture always has the bother that one can go around it, and the material of which it is made gives an impression of form before the sculptor has worked on it."

"I myself prefer painting."

So wrote Gertrude Stein in her book about Picasso and today her words about Picasso's "Negro" period, which for a long time he denied, sound almost prophetic. For Gertrude Stein went on to say that "Picasso, having made a prodigious effort to create a painting by his understanding of African sculpture was seduced a short time after 1908 by his interest in the sculptural form rather than by the vision in African sculpture but even so in the end it was an intermediate step toward cubism."

Her other writings on Negro art are even more lucid, but there is no time for them here.

The fact is, inescapable that after Matisse introduced his friend Picasso to the experience of Negro art and Braque, Modigliani and Juan Gris saw for themselves the affinity between their own experiments and the tradition of African art, cubism with "its technique of superimposed planes" could not survive. It had to progress even further, beyond the Negro vision.

It is at this point, of course, that those who have tried to trace a clear path through the jungle of modern art, to follow at least one straight clear course—it is at this point that many writers have become hazy. Frank Elgar in his study of Picasso was bold enough to say that "Picasso's acceptance of African art undoubtedly helped to bring analytical cubism to an end."

Misinterpreted

The influence of Negro sculpture upon the art of painting was short-lived, and certainly no longer than the years 1906-1913. After the end of First World War, the immediate influence was upon Western sculpture.

If people like their religion with plenty of sugar in it, who is to say that they are wrong? I know where my own tastes lie, and that is with Bach's Baroque grandeur.

WHAT HO!

KINSMEN
BOAT SHOW

APPEARING in next week's light opera production at Oak Bay Junior High School is vivacious soprano Leona Hanley. Composed and written by Winifred Lugrin Fahey, "The Jewel of Loodipoor" tells a romantic tale of a mythical island. The opera, directed by Madam Fahey, will be seen April 2 and 3 at 8:30. Large cast includes Peggy Packard, Laura Miller, Ian Wilcox.

This is the first book I have read on African Sculpture in which I have found answers to those questions, which I had formed in my mind but, through ignorance, had been unable to ask. For if any art requires a pocket-book "guide," especially in relation to the complexities of modern aesthetic experiment, the art of African Sculpture has first priority.

As next week at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria there will be opened an exhibition of African Sculpture circulated by the National Gallery of Canada, having read Ladislas Segy's informative book I will approach the exhibition better prepared—and certainly with increased enjoyment and understanding.

Unfortunately for us, Negro sculpture has been more or less consistently misinterpreted in the writings of some of our best historians, so that the young student has either overestimated its influence upon the arts of Western civilization, or has been bamboozled into the most unrealistic emotionalism for an art about which he knew almost nothing.

J. E. Barton once wrote about the spontaneous genius of "Negro art," a statement which I dutifully copied down, only to learn that spontaneity is the least applicable definition of the Negro's highly contrived art.

And it was Frank Rutter, in his famous book on "Evolution in Modern Art," published in 1926, who declared that "in this savage art the proportions might be all wrong, the figures might be queer and strange; but it was argued, with truth, that for all their crude simplicity many of them

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Success of our recent student concerts by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra—made financially possible under terms of a Canada Council grant—stresses a goof made in the last issue of no less a publication than the Canada Council quarterly bulletin, most recent of which was published last month.

This is another item for George Warren's personal chamber of horrors.

In a section devoted to a report on artists and performing organizations, the bulletin comments . . . "Symphony orchestras from Vancouver to Halifax—including those in Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal—and Pro Arte and Hart House orchestras have been offered grants to enable them to extend their activities."

An Honor Richly Deserved

Speaking of awards and developments, two pieces of news this week were guaranteed to bring a flush of pride to faces of city boosters.

All friends and admirers of Malcolm Hamilton and his splendid musicianship are elated at the distinction bestowed on him by the United States government. For some of us, of course, there is an underlying note of selfish regret that we are no longer to share and enjoy personally, his great talents.

This city will be musically much poorer for his departure and we must mourn a little on that score even while we are proudly wishing him all the good fortune he deserves for the future.

It makes one even more strongly aware of how slow we Canadians are—particularly out here on the mist-shrouded West Coast—to evaluate properly the talents of our people and to provide facilities for their development and outlets to entice them home again when they—or others like them—are developed.

Which brings me to the second piece of news concerning Victoria College land purchase. Promise of eventual full university status suggests other possible developments, such as establishment of a faculty of music providing a bachelor of arts degree.

Truly a Home for the Arts

Up to the present time, all our best music students wishing to achieve a university degree majoring in music have had to go over the border to Washington or elsewhere in the U.S. unless they care to go as far afield as Toronto.

In cold terms of cash alone, think of what that has taken out of circulation in Canada.

If ever there was a perfect university town where the fine arts could find a climate suitable to their fullest burgeoning, this Victoria is it.

Incidentally, out of my mental file marked "curios" this little item comes forth:

Why and from whence this attitude—real or assumed—of contempt for "eggheads," "longhairs," "swats,"

Confusion Over Stereo Cleared by Investigation

By HUMPHRY DAVY

There still seem to be a number of misconceptions about stereo. Every week I receive queries for information on the subject and system is not what it is cracked up to be.

One reader who telephoned to say that she was disappointed with stereo complained the records didn't sound any better than her LPs. It turned out she was playing stereo discs on a monaural player.

I'm afraid many people between now and next Christmas will feel themselves let down unless they take the time to find out what stereo is all about.

Here are some common questions asked about stereo and the answers.

What do I gain by having stereo sound equipment? Stereo will give your music depth and a sense of presence.

Can I buy good stereo equipment for $250 or less? If you can, I'd like to be the first to hear about it.

What will it cost me to assemble a good stereo set? Anywhere between $450 and $2,000.

Can you play monaural records on stereo equipment? Yes, your LPs should sound better on stereo.

Can I play stereo records on a monaural player? You will ruin them after one or two plays.

Now to return to records. Recommended: Dyorak's "Slavonic Dances" (complete op. 42 and 72) and Smetana's "From My Life" (Quartet in E minor), transcribed for orchestra by George Szell (Epic).

This is a two-disc album. I have never heard a better performance of Slavonic Dance No. 4. This is a real gem, which unfortunately is not heard too often.

Conductor Szell and the Cleveland Orchestra seem to be enveloped in the spirit of this music. Here is playing of the utmost virtuosity.

'SUBSTANTIAL SAVINGS'

Expert Upholds Bennett's Plans

A senior financial expert Thursday virtually validated the provincial government's original plan to refinance the B.C. Power Commission's debt.

Alan H. Williamson, partner in the investment firm of Wood Gundy told the Shrum Royal Commission the refinancing scheme proposed last October by Premier Bennett was "fair and would have resulted in substantial savings" to the power commission.

His testimony was in direct opposition to charges by H. Lee Briggs, former general manager of the power commission. He alleged that Premier Bennett wanted to refinance power commission borrowings simply to help erase the province's net debt.

The refinancing would have added hundreds of thousands of dollars to the bills of power commission customers. Mr. Briggs claimed. Mr. Briggs' outspoken attack on the government led to his dismissal and the setting up by the premier of the Shrum probe into power commission affairs.

Higher Prices and Better Credit

"Nothing at all," said Mr. Williamson. "It was to the power commission's advantage. They received better prices and kept their credit at a higher level."

Mr. Williamson said he thought the government's refinancing plan was fair because it seemed unlikely that interest rates will drop materially in future years."

"Interest rates have been rising all over the world, mainly because of the inflationary pressures and the fact that interest rates must increase to compensate for the risk of further decline in the value of money."

He pointed out that the Bank of Canada thought it wise last September to re-finance 3 per cent federal bonds at higher rates of interest for longer periods of time. At the same time it offered to pay as high as 4½ per cent interest to holders of 3 per cent bonds who converted into long-term bonds. In addition, he said, bondholders in "most cases" were paid a cash bonus to encourage them to accept the higher rates of interest for longer terms.

"It is obvious," he said, "that the federal government gave its creditors much more favorable terms than the power commission was asked to give to its creditor, the provincial government, in October, 1958."

The investment expert flatly declined to comment on the revised financing plan adopted by the government and recommended in the interim report of the royal commission.

"I purposely didn't study it because I was specifically asked by Dr. Shrum for my opinion on the original plan," he said.

LAW 'OUT OF DATE'

A Man Can Sit With Case of Beer

NANAIMO (CP)—Legislation prohibiting the possession of liquor in a public eating place is inadequate and out of date, Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts said Thursday.

60-MILE ZONE FROM HILLIERS TO PARKSVILLE

NANAIMO—New 60-mile-per-hour signs were posted Friday on Highway 17 between Parksville village limits and Whiskey Creek, near Hilliers, according to RCMP.

The stretch with the higher limit is nine miles in length. Others are 12 miles of Trans-Canada Highway east of Abbotsford, and 50 miles from Cache Creek to the Merritt Highway intersection near Kamloops.

But officers working the sections said motorists were behaving just the same as before—travelling at 60 miles an hour until the cruiser appeared in the rear-view mirror, then slowing down to 50.

A similar case was recently dismissed in Vancouver.

The magistrate dismissed a charge against Barry Albert Blake of possessing beer in a public eating place. Blake was arrested Jan. 25 in a local cafe after he had placed two unopened cases of beer beside him.

"I don't think the legislature, when passing these liquor acts, took into consideration cases such as these," Magistrate Beevor-Potts said.

"A man can walk down the main street waving a bottle of beer in each hand and do nothing illegal, while a person sitting quietly in a restaurant, which is certainly more private, cannot have two unopened cases of beer beside him."

A similar case was recently dismissed in Vancouver.

BIG POW-WOW FOR POTLATCH RELIC MUSEUM

COURTENAY (CP)—Indian bands from Vancouver Island and the north coast of British Columbia will gather here this summer for the return of relics taken from the Puntledge tribe by the federal government 37 years ago when potlatches were banned.

Highlight of the ceremonies will be the opening of a $12,000 museum built to house the potlatch relics.

In 1922 the federal government clamped down on the coastal Indians' practice of holding periodic potlatches. It was customary for the host to give each visitor to the feast a gift but although the host might beggar himself temporarily, he was assured of reimbursement when his guests, to save face, were obliged to return the gifts with interest at their own potlatches. Thus it became a vicious circle.

In the interests of the Indians the federal government stepped in and seized all paraphernalia used in potlatches and transferred it to the National Museum at Ottawa.

Now many of these artifacts are being returned to the Puntledge tribe on a "permanent loan" basis. But potlatches are still outlawed.

BCT Plans Big Cable Project

B.C. Telephone Company will start cable projects totaling more than $1,000,000 on central Vancouver Island during the early summer.

Feature of this major expansion program, which is expected to take 18 months to complete, will be the installation of B.C.'s longest landline toll cable extending from Duncan to Qualicum—a distance of 65 miles.

The $1,000,000 project also allows for extensive additions to outside wiring and cable throughout the Nanaimo, Parksville and Chemainus exchanges in preparation for the introduction of dial service in these areas next year. In addition, the company will carry out a large improvement program in Duncan.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, MARCH 28, 1959 19

Ferries Strained to Limit As Curtailed Service Felt

Easter Morning Sun Predicted

Fair weather was predicted today for Easter Sunday morning, which likely will see record numbers of Victorians attending church services in the city.

Weatherman William Mackie predicted skies would be partly cloudy tonight, and that there will be sunshine Sunday. Temperatures will be moderate, even for those attending the Beacon Hill Park sunrise service, and winds will be light.

A storm in mid-Pacific, however, will give increasing cloud here by Sunday evening, and southeast winds up to 25 miles per hour. Rain is expected late Sunday night or Monday.

Although special services are planned at all city churches, outstanding observances are scheduled for Christ Church Cathedral, St. John's Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

A special feature of the 11 a.m. worship at St. Andrew's Cathedral will be the arrival of pilgrims who started for Victoria from Nanaimo Thursday night carrying a 200-pound cedar cross.

MIXED WEATHER

Just about every type of spring weather possible has been felt here to date on the Easter weekend, starting with a brilliant display of northern lights Thursday evening at about 8:30.

The phenomenon appeared first in the north as a glowing green plume which spread eastward, showing the characteristic oscillating fingers of light of the aurora borealis.

Distinctly apart from the green play of light, a large, steady burst of dull red appeared in the east, growing larger and then fading after about five minutes duration.

Friday brought a wind which reached an average speed of 34 miles per hour by 4 p.m., and gusts up to 54 miles. Cars formed a steady procession along the waterfront from the breakwater to Cadboro Bay as sightseers enjoyed watching changes of the windswept offshore waters and crashing waves along shore.

Temperatures will range between a low of 40 degrees tonight and a high of 52 degrees Sunday, according to the weatherman.

VERA BRITTAIN
... go into politics.

Quit Kitchen For a Cause, Women Urged

Most women are too preoccupied with families and cosmetics and should take more interest in the world's affairs, noted British authoress and lecturer Vera Brittain said in Victoria today.

"They seem to be anesthetized," she might say stupefied by little domestic details.

Children and a husband all have their place, but housewives should follow what's going on around them, locally and on an international scale."

Miss Brittain, in town on the last leg of a month-long lecture tour of the U.S. and Canada, said "most women these days are as intelligent as the men and should not be content to stay buried at home."

CLOTHES NOT ENOUGH

"They should run for political office and do things like that. Clothes, cosmetics and that sort of thing are all very well, but the world has many problems and women should help solve them."

The authoress, 55-year-old wife of a McGill University professor of politics, said she would have been a politician if she had not chosen writing for a career.

"I would run for the Labor Party," she added thoughtfully. "I have always been interested in the welfare of people once oppressed. But unfortunately the Labor Party is not so dynamic as it used to be."

First time in Victoria, Miss Brittain said she was fully in favor of women travelling all over the world—but not merely as globe-trotters. They have to have something, an interest in a cause or idea, to contribute to the countries they visit."

She said she did not expect a third world war—"common-sense leaders know today's weapons rule out the possibility of a war"—but urged men and women to work for peace by writing to the newspapers and taking part in protest marches and vigils when world peace seemed to be threatened.

Travel is back to normal today, but all transportation companies are braced for another big rush late Sunday and all day Monday.

TCA BOOKED SOLID

Best bet for foot passengers appears to be the once-a-day sailing of Princess Margaret, Vancouver-Victoria and return. The ship can accommodate up to 2,000, and had only 200 aboard for the Thursday day-before-holiday sailing.

Trans-Canada Airlines has stepped up service to care for nearly 7,000 passengers between Victoria and Vancouver over the weekend, but is closed to solid.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines are running extra sections as needed between Victoria and Nanaimo, and are still able to accept round-trip reservations.

Washington State Ferries anticipates a busy weekend but believes everyone will be accommodated.

INCOME TAX TIPS

Report Rental Earnings

By GORDON A. GREEN

There are many people in this area who receive rental income from an apartment income, a house, or a duplex. In all cases these earnings must be reported.

The expenses incurred in earning this income are deductible. You should either complete page 4 of the T-1 General Tax Form or file a separate operating statement with your return, showing the total rents collected and the different expenses incurred.

The T-1 General Information sheet will be of help to all receiving rental income.

Two particular points of importance discussed on this sheet are capital cost allowance (depreciation) and rental of part of a residence.

Capital cost allowance is an important type of expense allowed to the property owner.

The taxpayer need not claim the maximum allowance in any case.

Different classes of assets are allowed different rates of capital cost allowances.

(Frame buildings 10 per cent, furnishings 20 per cent, etc.)

and so on.

Rental income is not considered as investment income and is therefore not subject to the 4 per cent investment income surtax. This provision of the Income Tax Act also covers rents received through an esteate or trust.)

PRIZE 'PINE FOREST' ON SHOW

Prize painting of Victoria artist Dun-can de Kergommeaux will be among 40-works of art of the Monsanto Co. collection to go on exhibition at the Art Gallery next Tuesday. It's entitled

"Painting From a Pine Forest." The work was chosen from 450 entries across Canada for reproduction as the company's 1957 Christmas card.

MONTE ROBERTS

It was a rainy Good Friday yesterday, and it brought back memories of another rainy Good Friday, many, many years ago when I was just barely a teen-ager.

Now, I don't know about the teen-agers of today. But the teen-agers of THOSE days were alert, clean-living, and interested in healthy, educational pursuits.

And the reason I remember this particular Good Friday so well, it was the occasion of just such a healthy, educational pursuit.

Namely, an overnight hike and camp-out.

We set off from Vancouver's Grandview district, a half-dozen schoolmates, each equipped with a blanket roll (who could afford a sleeping bag?), a couple of cans of beans and a hunk of bacon. One of us packed a pup tent.

The first leg of the journey was by street car, to the Second Narrows Bridge. From then on, we took to our sturdy little legs and headed for the Seymour River.

The early part of the hike was uneventful and pleasant, but then, as it always seems to do on Good Friday, came afternoon and came rain.

By the time we reached a spot on the river bank where we could conveniently pitch our small tent, we were fairly well soaked. But we managed to get a fire going just outside the tent flap, and inside all was well.

It being too wet to hike any further that day, some body broke out the cards and a penny-ante blackjack game was started.

As I had forgotten to bring cigarettes, one of the older boys was kind enough to give me lessons in rolling my own.

Well, it should have been a pleasant, cozy night. But the usual fool made the error of touching the inside of the tent, and it was soon leaking like a sieve.

I just plain couldn't get to sleep, and at the first grey signs of dawn, decided to go home on my own.

So I walked and I walked and I walked—it seemed much farther going back.

And actually, it was. Because I had to pass up the street car ride, having lost my last cent at blackjack.

Ah, yes, teen-agers in those days liked healthy, educational pursuits. And if you wish to know what I learned on the hike described above, it was how to roll a cigarette, and also, the chances of improving 17 without going broke are very remote, indeed.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

These children's art classes will open at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria on April 6. Classes will be held in the newly enlarged children's painting room. It was redecorated with funds provided by the Association of Childhood Education, Victoria branch.

Since the Association first began its assistance to the Art Gallery in the field of children's art, it has raised $2,147 for the purpose of developing the physical facilities of the painting room and for operation of classes.

Fred Johnson, 6393 Patricia Bay Highway, who was thrown out of a car which then bounded driverless onto railroad tracks at Trans-Canada and Burnside, was fined $35 in Saanich police court Thursday for careless driving.

Magistrate William Ostler restricted him to business driving only for one month.

Police said Johnson's car was in collision with another at the intersection, then went for 75 feet off the road before stopping on the adjacent rails.

Cyclist Wanda Bradley, nine, of 2337 Wesley, was treated for a minor knee injury at Jubilee Hospital after her bike was in collision with a car driven by Grant Reed, 3937 Quadra, at Cook and Haultain, Thursday at 4:18 p.m.

Herman Leroy Redlin, 1157 Johnson, was charged in city police court today with breaking, entering and theft in connection with a burglary at Benny's Grill, 1020 Blanchard early Thursday.

Redlin was remanded for plea to Wednesday to enable him to obtain counsel.

Prosecutor Kenneth Murphy asked for substantial bail, which was set at $2,000.

The Victoria Soaring Club has postponed the launching of its sail plane from Sunday to next weekend. David Smith, president, said today. The club is awaiting for clearance papers from the department of transport before taking the aircraft on a test flight.

A Calgary firm plans to publish a Western Canada tourist guide, representative said here Tuesday.

Stephen W. Zalusky, head of Trans Canada Tourist Guide Co., said the guide would cover the four western provinces, with information on recreation, hotels and motels, parks, and points of scenic and historic interest.

A charge of common assault was laid after McKenzie struck his wife in the face during an argument early Thursday. He told Magistrate William Ostler he felt at the time he was justified, but later considered "it was not quite the proper thing to do."

John McKenzie, 4145 Wilkinson, was put on $250 bond for three months' good-behavior when sentence was suspended in Saanich police court Thursday on a charge that he assaulted his wife Margaret.

A charge of common assault was laid after McKenzie struck his wife in the face during an argument early Thursday. He told Magistrate William Ostler he felt at the time he was justified, but later considered "it was not quite the proper thing to do."

"THE WORD OF VICTORY"

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

20 Victoria Daily Times SAT., MARCH 28, 1959

Special Music for Easter Sunday

Magnificent strains of traditional music from choirs and organs will herald Easter Sunday in Victoria, the end of Lent and the anniversary of the Resurrection of Christ.

City churches of all denominations are expected to be crowded as worshippers observe one of the three major religious feast days in the Christian year.

At Christ Church Cathedral The Lord Archbishop of British Columbia, Most Reverend Harold E. Sexton will deliver the sermon at Choral Eucharist starting at 11 a.m.

The boys' choir will sing the Introit, "This Joyful Easter-tide" by Dr. Charles Wood and the full choir will render the S. S. Wesley gradual "Blessed Be the God and Father."

At even service, which will be Festal Evensong, the choir will render the anthem "The Strife is O'er" by Henry G. Ley.

Festival music will be played at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. services. In the morning Kay Paulin will sing "My Redeemer Liveth," Georgina Harper will sing "O Death, Where Is Thy Sting," both by Handel, and the choir will render Handel's "But Thanks Be to God."

At evening service Margaret A. Duff will sing "All in the April Evening" by Robertson and the chorus will do two numbers, "Since by Man Came Death" by Handel and "This is the Day," by Woodcock.

Junior and Sanctuary Choirs will sing at three services in addition to the regular Metropolitan United Church morning and evening devotions: Easter music will be by the Junior and Senior Choirs of each church.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Make Last Year's Cottons Perky, Bright—Like New

By PENNY SAVER

Are you busy these days getting out your spring and summer clothes from winter storage cupboards? Nothing can be quite so sad. That favorite cotton dress you wore and wore last summer—when it emerges from being folded away all these months—it's limp, dull and lifeless.

Don't despair! It can look as perky and sparkling as the day you bought it! Just give it a little special treatment.

Liquid starches are available now that make doing up cottons a dream!

What's more there is a starch that will stay in through washings. This means one starching lasts literally months! A large bottle is 79 cents—and will do the work of 10 quarts of regular liquid starch. Mix starch with cool water—swish through cotton and let it dry. The job's done!

If all the life and color seems gone, a dry-cleaning firm has a special process developed just to perk up those cottons.

Colors are brightened; freshness and texture brought back, and the original drape and fall of the material restored. They will add sizing or stiffening at no extra cost, if you wish. A simple cotton dress (sleeveless) is $1.40 by this process.

Speaking of spring—are these fresh breezes and turns about in temperatures making your lips rough and sore? A new lipstick, developed by a famous house of beauty, has a vitamin-type emollient added to lubricate and eliminate dryness.

Lips actually feel soft and creamy. Amazing point with this lipstick is that the color really stays on—looking fresh and vivid through day and night. The "alive" and glowing shades seem to radiate, and even after lipstick is removed the tint still remains.

In an ivory plastic container, lipsticks are $1.10.

Handiest liquid deodorant I've found yet is one which has special applicator in neck of bottle—a sponge is covered with nylon satin—to control the flow of liquid. No dripping or drying ever! Exactly the right amount of deodorant filters through.

Penny can't tell you how long one 98 cent bottle lasts. I bought one in September and there's still about a quarter-left (and I use it once or twice a day!) It is a really efficient check—and protection lasts a good 24 hours.

Ring Penny Saver at EV 2-3131, she will tell you name and where to find it.

TODAY'S RECIPERHUBARB PUDDING

Three cups rhubarb, 2 apples, 1½ cups granulated sugar, ½ cup once-sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup lightly packed brown sugar, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. (moderate).

Wash, trim and cut up sufficient rhubarb to yield the required 3 cups. Peel, quarter, core and thinly slice the apples. Combine fruits and the granulated sugar; spread the mixture in a broad rather shallow baking dish. Combine flour, baking powder, brown sugar and egg; drop by small spoonfuls over fruit. Dot with butter or margarine. Bake in preheated oven until fruit is tender and topping golden, 30 to 35 minutes. Serve warm with pouring cream or custard sauce.

Yield: About 6 servings.

Edith Head, fashion chief of Paramount Pictures, and author of "The Dress Doctor," is seen here dictating to her collaborator, Jane Ardmore.

IN STEP WITH STYLEFamed American Designer Has No Paris Training

By NONA DAMASKE

"Fashion is a language. Some are born knowing it, some learn it, some never will," says Edith Head, author of "The Dress Doctor."

This autobiography by a well-known designer brings the reader an intimate glance into the lives of many well-known Hollywood stars.

Edith Head is a native of Los Angeles and is the first famous American designer to succeed without Paris training.

Her training began—with a bag of fabric scraps. As a child, this bag, with its bright pieces and bits, was her greatest treasure.

Edith Head dressed dolls as other children did, but she also dressed Tom, her black cat; Dina, her white dog; jack rabbits, horned toads and any stray burros that might be around.

During her first year at Paramount the author says she seriously considered going back to her first profession—teaching.

But as she began to discover the magic of being able to completely change a person with clothes, she became more problems of a Hollywood designer are many and varied.

Color has become so important in the past few years the designer must now plan the star's wardrobe with a color consultant as well as the art director.

The star herself must feel right in her clothes, the director must be satisfied, the sound director may want a dress that rustles and then again he may not, the big eye of censorship is always watching.

Edith Head says:

"To be a successful Hollywood designer you have to be a combination of psychiatrist, artist, fashion designer, dressmaker, pincushion, historian, nursemaid and purchasing agent."

Winner of six Oscars, this interesting personality offers practical advice to women in all walks of life in her new book. She tells you what clothes can do for you and what you can do for clothes.

Final 30 pages of this absorbing book are entitled "Prescription for Dressing" and, beginning with "A" for amusement parks, runs the gamut of functions through to "W" for wrestling matches.

Published by Little Brown and Company (Canada) Ltd., this book for fashion minded women is priced at $4.50.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here's What to Do for Aging Neck and Chinline

The neck and chinline often make a woman look older than she is, or at least mar an otherwise youthful appearance. This may be true because the throat is crepe or the chinline blurred because of drooping or fatty deposits.

The crepe throat is due to several factors. Extreme dryness is one of them. Then, too, the muscles underneath the chin may have become lax or stretched, or may have shortened. As we grow older the layer of fat between the muscles and the skin decreases and there is a general loss of tone.

There are measures we can take which will delay or minimize this condition. In the first place regular lubrication is absolutely essential. Circulation creams are sometimes helpful since they whip up circulation in this area.

Exercises for toning the muscles also are indicated. Good nutrition has an effect on the entire body. Lines on the neck usually are due to defects in posture. If you have the habit of ducking the chin into the neck, you will have lines on the front of the neck. If you slump through the region of the neck, you will find the lines most noticeable on the back of the neck. Many women who have fairly good posture collapse at the back of the neck.

A double chin is due to poor posture. Stand tall. Keep the shoulders relaxed as you roll your head in a circle, first in one direction and then in the other.

Stand with the feet separated. Lower the head backward until you feel the muscles stretch. As you do so pull the arms back, palms facing forward. Return head to usual position and arms to side. Continue. Do this exercise very slowly.

If you would like to have my exercises for the chinline and neck, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 10. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

For the chinline and neckline, posture is also to fatty deposits in this spot. However, many women who are the correct weight have a double chin. Improvement in posture and special exercises are the medicine.

Try these. Stand tall. Keep the shoulders relaxed as you roll your head in a circle, first in one direction and then in the other.

OTTAWA (CP) — The militant Seafarers' International Union headed by Hal C. Banks may face suspension from the Canadian Labor Congress for membership raiding.

U.S. PLANNING MANNED SPACE PLATFORMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — American scientists are looking forward confidently to a manned space platform that could move about and return to earth at will.

This report came almost casually Thursday from Roy W. Johnson, director of the military space program.

The idea is to spring a thousand-ton platform into position by means of many small atomic explosions. One problem: How to protect its crew. He said work will continue beyond the research which already has cost more than $1,000,000.

Victoria Man Sent to Jail

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — A homeowner called police here to report a driver, whose car was stuck in front of his house, was "chopping up my lawn."

A policeman answering the complaint recognized the licence number as that of a car stolen in Toronto, 50 miles southwest of here, earlier in the day.

Richard O. Smock, 29, of Victoria was charged with car theft. In Toronto Thursday he was sentenced to six months in jail.

Victoria Daily Times Silhouette Contest

No. 18

Silhouette Contest Rules

1. The Silhouette Contest is simple and easy to work. It consists of 120 artistic drawings of widely known persons and 120 pictures. All you have to do is identify the silhouettes, and to name every picture them with pictures of the people you think are portrayed in the silhouettes. Each person shown in a silhouette must be shown by picture but not necessarily on the same day. In addition there will be pictures of other persons who will not be shown in silhouette drawings. Thus you will have 120 pictures to choose from in your 60 selections etc go with the 60 silhouettes. Keep the 60 left over pictures. The keep the 60 left over pictures for the final Silhouette Scramble.

2. The contest starts on Saturday, March 7, 1959. Each day for 60 days one silhouette and one picture will be printed. After you have had a silhouette with a picture, paste or in some way fasten the picture, put it on a length of paper. All 60 sheets are to be fastened together in order and each sheet should bear your name.

3. The Times will award $750 in cash prizes to the winners. There are no entry fees. The prizes are:

1. $500

2. $100

3. $50

and four prizes of $25 each.

4. The contest is open to all residents of Vancouver Island or the area, to employees of the Times and Victoria News Ltd. and members of their families. Not more than one prize can be awarded in any one immediate family.

5. By entering the contest, the participant agrees to accept the decision of the judges as final.

DIFFERENT STORIES IN SHIP CRASH

Stormy Hearing Ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — The Valchem's skipper claimed Friday he was hope to in thick fog when his ship was rammed by the luxury liner Santa Rosa. Both vessels were using radar and he said both were sounding fog signals.

Capt. Louis L. Murphy, 33, told reporters when the smashed tanker reached here under tow:

"The Santa Rosa kept coming and hit us on the port side near the stern at high speed.

We were stopped in the water when she hit."

His statement was in direct contradiction to the prior report by the Santa Rosa's owners that the Valchem crossed in front of the liner in perfect weather. On the contrary, Murphy contended, it was the liner that changed course impro-perately.

In that crash one skipper insisted there was fog, the other said there wasn't. Each blamed the other for making an improper turn just before they crashed. The dispute never was resolved.

FROGMAN EYES ST. LAWRENCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Louis Lourmais says her frogman husband, who swam 600 miles down the icy Fraser River three months ago, now is planning to swim down the St. Lawrence behind an ice-breaker.

Mrs. Lourmais said in an interview her husband told her in a phone call from Montreal that he plans to make the crossing from Montreal to Quebec City about the middle of next month.

11 Professors Quit Over Crowe Dispute

WINNIPEG (CP) — Eleven members of the faculty of United College confirmed Thursday that they have resigned over the handling of the case of history professor Harry S. Crowe by the college board of regents.

FOUR CREWMEN DIE

The disagreement foreshadowed a stormy hearing when the U.S. Coast Guard opened an inquiry into the crash next Monday. Four crew members of the Valchem died in the collision early Thursday 22 miles off Atlantic City, N.J.

The dispute also brought to mind the 1956 sea collision be-

REDS CRUSH REVOLT

Tibetans Under Military Rule

KALIMPONG, India (Reuters) — The Chinese Communists today dissolved local governments throughout Tibet and imposed military rule as they consolidated their positions after crushing the Lhasa uprising against their regime.

Reds Pour Weapons Into Iraq

(Editor's Note: UPI Middle East correspondent Larry Collins was exchanged from Hanoi Thursday with two other American correspondents. He reports that the Soviet Union is pouring tanks and arms into Iraq for a major expansion of the Iraqi army.)

By LARRY COLLINS
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Soviet Union is pouring tanks and arms into Iraq for a major expansion of the Iraqi army by Communist-backed Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

The premier already has put one new, understrength division into the field since he took power in a coup last July, and plans for a second already have been completed.

The new divisions were scheduled to receive Soviet arms, which have been arriving steadily during the past eight months. The most recent shipment arrived at Basra last weekend and included 34 tanks.

SIXTH SHIPMENT

It was the sixth Soviet ship-load of arms since the coup and brought to 150 the number of Russian tanks now being readied for use by the army.

This is double the number of tanks in the late King Faisal's pro-Western army and enough to outfit a full Soviet-style mechanized division. The tanks include about 100 old-style T-34 tanks and 50 of the newer, T-54 models.

CZECH PISTOLS

In addition, the Soviets have delivered to Iraq about 20,000 Czech machine pistols, anti-aircraft guns, light and medium field artillery pieces, small arms, mortars and motorized transport.

At least 100 Soviet army officers and men are in Iraq on a training mission to instruct the Iraqi army in the use of the new weapons.

They replaced the British military mission which used to train Iraq's British and American-equipped army.

Thus far, there has been no sign that the new equipment has been integrated into the army on a large-scale, but some Czech machine pistols made their appearance in Baghdad last week.

Blockade Studied

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Evening Star said today the United States is considering a naval blockade of Russia in the Baltic and Black Sea areas if the Soviet Union cuts off the West's access to Berlin.

A PRAYER MADE WITH FEET

Modern-day pilgrims carrying a replica of the cross from Nanaimo to Victoria were south of Duncan and "still going strong" at noon today. Called the "Pacific Cross" it is being carried on the 80-mile journey by representatives of the Newman Alumni Club, Newman Club, and Nanaimo and Victoria Catholic Youth organizations. Pilgrims are due at St. Andrew's Cathedral Sunday at 11 a.m.

Easter Pilgrims Carrying Giant Cross to City

Symbolizing the journey of Christ to Calvary, 21 modern pilgrims are carrying a replica of the cross 80 miles from Nanaimo to Victoria this Easter weekend.

At noon today the travellers were south of Duncan and "in good working order" on the trip which is expected to end Sunday at 11 a.m. outside St. Andrew's Catholic Cathedral here.

In a "religious exercise rather than a spectacle" the representatives of various Catholic organizations and one Protestant limped determinedly south on the last stages of their marathon trek.

Spokesman for the party said that no names were being used since "the intent of the trip was not self-gloryification."

Pilgrims Gather For Holy Rites

JERUSALEM (AP) — Easter Week ceremonies today approached a joyous climax with solemn Holy Saturday rites in the Basilica of the Holy Sepulchre at the altar near the scene of Christ's burial and resurrection.

Hundreds of pilgrims and tourists crowded the church in the old walled city of Jerusalem.

Their petition was accepted by the UN department that handles visitors, but since the priests are non-governmental in status there is nothing the UN can do on their motion except serve as the background for their presentation.

sang hymns, priests lifted the crown of thorns and withdrew the nails.

In Rome Friday, Pope John removed his shoes for austere Good Friday services held under grey, drizzly skies at the Basilica of Santa Croce (Holy Cross).

The altars at the basilica were bare, but exposed were relics of the church, including two thorns Catholics believe to have been part of the crown put on Jesus' head, a nail and a piece of the cross on which Christ's resurrection.

The Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, Most Rev. Alberto Gori, entered the church at 6:30 a.m. to preside at the rites of the blessing of the fire — symbolic of Christ as the light of the world — at the stone of anointment where Christ's body is said to have been anointed after his death on nearby Calvary.

At the ornate Byzantine altar of the crucifixion, which marks the traditional spot of Calvary, the figure of the crucified Christ was taken from the cross. While the choir, priests and altar boys sang hymns, priests lifted the

B.C. Crash Kills 2

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) — Two persons were killed Friday night when a tank plunged into a ditch on the Alaska Highway 105 miles north of here. The driver is hospital at Fort St. John with serious injuries. RCMP withheld names of the dead and injured.

The pontiff, speaking from his apartment in the Vatican Palace to an audience of millions over radio and television, declared:

"We offer a prayer that peace, the daughter of gentleness and goodwill, may establish a lasting rule among the nations made ever anxious by the clouds which repeatedly darken the horizon."

The Pope added that he prayed also for those Roman Catholic bishops, priests, nuns and faithful — "the most dear to us of all who, deprived of their families, their homeland, of liberty itself, are living and painful witness of the evils which afflict the human race because of the lack of true peace and its proper fruits."

In Rome Friday, Pope John removed his shoes for austere Good Friday services held under grey, drizzly skies at the Basilica of Santa Croce (Holy Cross).

The altars at the basilica were bare, but exposed were

LONDON—Worshippers at a Good Friday service Friday night sipped beer while they sang hymns to rock 'n' roll music.

The service, organized by six Anglican parish priests, was held in the dance hall section of the Rose Tavern and members of the congregation nipped out to the bar and brought back a beer when they felt thirsty.

"We are aiming at taking the Easter message to people who are not in church and we believe this is the way to do it," explained Rev. Geoffrey Beaumont, 55.

"I see no reason why we should not use the rhythm of the day to sing hymns and I see no reason why the congregation should not sip beer if they want to."

Local Men Join Federal Pay Protest

Three representatives of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Postal Employees' Association will attend a mass protest meeting to be held later today in Vancouver.

They are Victoria branch president B. E. Coey, secretary H. E. Bower and treasurer Colin Moore.

The meeting was called to deplore the slowness of the federal government "in acknowledging salary increases and bargaining rights for federal civil servants."

(Evidence heard earlier in the trial indicated Finland had completed the body of the forms).

Mr. Beatty said further that the signatures alleged to be those of the fathers of the under-age couple as they appeared on the forms were not the same as specimen signatures of the two fathers.

Earlier, Mr. McKenna called seven character witnesses.

They included lawyer and Victoria MLA George Gregory, 2900 Beach; lawyer William H. M. Haldane, 2390 San Carlos, former city alderman Frances Greville Mulliner, 850 Cormorant, teacher and social worker Mary Ellen Morgan, 729 Pemerton, retired municipal worker Joseph Harper, 488 Admirals, retired bank manager Dugald MacGregor, 2950 Lansdowne, and Esquimalt police sergeant James Kemp Smart, 508 Lampson.

They testified to Finland's "excellent reputation, integrity, and character."

PRIZE 'PINE FOREST' ON SHOW

Prize painting of Victoria artist Dunc de Kergommeaux will be among 40 works of art of the Monsanto Co. collection to go on exhibition at the Art Gallery next Tuesday. It's entitled

"Painting From a Pine Forest." The work was chosen from 450 entries across Canada for reproduction as the company's 1957 Christmas card.

MONTE ROBERTS

It was a rainy Good Friday yesterday, and it brought back memories of another rainy Good Friday many years ago when I was just barely a teen-ager.

Now, I don't know about the teen-agers of today. But the teen-agers of THOSE days were alert, clean-living, interested in healthy, educational pursuits.

And the reason I remember this particular Good Friday so well, it was the occasion of just such a healthy, educational pursuit.

Namely, an overnight hike and camp-out.

We set off from Vancouver's Grandview district, a half-dozen schoolmates, each equipped with a blanket roll (who could afford a sleeping bag?), a couple of cans of beans and a hunk of bacon. One of us packed a pup tent.

The first leg of the journey was by street car, to the Second Narrows Bridge. From then on, we took to our sturdy little legs and headed for the Seymour River.

The early part of the hike was uneventful and pleasant, but then, as it always seems to do on Good Friday, came afternoon and came rain.

By the time we reached a spot on the river bank where we could conveniently pitch our small tent, we were fairly well soaked. But we managed to get a fire going just outside the tent flap, and inside all was well.

If being too wet to hike any further that day, somebody broke out the cards and a penny-ante blackjack game was started.

As I had forgotten to bring cigarettes, one of the older boys was kind enough to give me lessons in rolling my own.

Well, it should have been a pleasant, cozy night. But the usual fool made the error of touching the inside of the tent, and it was soon leaking like a sieve.

I just plain couldn't get to sleep, and at the first grey signs of dawn, decided to go home on my own.

So I walked and I walked and I walked—it seemed much farther going back.

And actually, it was. Because I had to pass up the street car ride, having lost my last cent at blackjack.

Ah, yes, teen-agers in those days liked healthy, educational pursuits. And if you wish to know what I learned on the hike described above, it was how to roll a cigarette, and also, the chances of improving 17 without going broke are very remote, indeed.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The children's art classes will open at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria on April 6. Classes will be held in the newly enlarged children's painting room. It was redecorated with funds provided by the Association of Childhood Education, Victoria branch.

Since the Association first began its assistance to the Art Gallery in the field of children's art, it has raised $2,147 for the purpose of developing the physical facilities of the painting room and for operation of classes.

Fred Johnson, 6393 Patricia Bay Highway, who was thrown out of a car which then bounded driverless onto railroad tracks at Trans-Canada and Burnside, was fined $25 in Saanich police court Thursday for careless driving.

Magistrate William Oster restricted him to business driving only for one month.

Police said Johnson's car was in collision with another at the intersection, then went for 75 feet off the road before stopping on the adjacent rails.

Clifford Walter Chudy, 19, of Harding Lane, was fined $15 in Saanich police court Thursday when he pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of beer.

John McKenzie, 4145 Wilkinton, was put on $250 bond for three months' good behavior when sentence was suspended in Saanich police court Thursday on a charge that he assaulted his wife Margaret.

A charge of common assault was laid after McKenzie struck his wife in the face during an argument early Thursday. He told Magistrate William Oster he felt at the time he was justified, but later considered "it was not quite the proper thing to do."

A public dance in aid of the Langford and District 50-Up Club will be staged by the Highland Dance Club under the direction of Mrs. Betty Stubbs in Cadet Memorial Hall, Thunderbird Road, Wednesday at 2 p.m. Tea will be served.

Next monthly meeting will be held in the Britannia branch, Canadian Legion at 2 p.m. April 14.

Albert Dudley Rayburn, Saanichton, previously fined for impaired driving, was restricted in Saanich police court Thursday to business driving only for one year.

Mrs. Minnie Waring, 4240 Quadra, was fined $15 in Saanich police court Thursday for operating a fur farm without a licence.

Cyclist Wanda Bradley, nine, of 2537 Wesley, was treated for a minor knee injury at Jubilee Hospital after her bike was in collision with a car driven by Grant Reed, 3937 Quadra, at Cook and Hautain, Thursday at 4:18 p.m.

A cash register, believed stolen from a Hillside cafe last Saturday was found Thursday near Tunnel Hill on the Malahat.

Hillside Coffee Shop, 1005 Hillside, reported a register containing between $30 and $40, and three cartons of cigarettes were stolen in an overnight burglary.

A Calgary firm plans to publish a Western Canada tourist guide, a representative said here Thursday.

Stephen W. Zalusky, head of Trans Canada Tourist Co., said the guide would cover the four western provinces, with information on recreation, hotels and motels, parks, and points of scenic and historic interest.

Ferries Strained to Limit As Curtailed Service Felt

Easter Morning Sun Predicted

Fair weather was predicted today for Easter Sunday morning, which likely will see record numbers of Victorians attending church services in the city.

Weatherman William Mackie predicted skies would be partly cloudy tonight, and that there will be sunshine Sunday. Temperatures will be moderate, even for those attending the Beacon Hill Park sunrise service, and winds will be light.

A storm in mid-Pacific, however, will give increasing cloud here by Sunday evening, and southeast winds up to 25 miles per hour. Rain is expected late Sunday night or Monday.

Although special services are planned at all city churches, outstanding observances are scheduled for Christ Church Cathedral, St. John's Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

A special feature of the 11 a.m. worship at St. Andrew's Cathedral will be the arrival of pilgrims who started for Victoria from Nanaimo Thursday night carrying a 120-pound cedar cross.

MIXED WEATHER

Just about every type of spring weather possible has been felt here to date on the Easter weekend, starting with a brilliant display of northern lights Thursday evening at about 8:30.

The phenomenon appeared first in the north as a glowing green plume which spread eastward, showing the characteristic oscillating fingers of light of the aurora borealis.

Distinctly apart from the green play of light, a large, steady burst of dull red appeared in the east, growing larger and then fading after about five minutes duration.

Friday brought a wind which reached an average speed of 34 miles per hour by 4 p.m., and gusts up to 54 miles. Cars formed a steady procession along the waterfront from the breakwater to Cadboro Bay as sightseers enjoyed changing views of the windswept offshore waters and crashing waves along shore.

Temperatures will range between a low of 40 degrees tonight and a high of 52 degrees Sunday, according to the weatherman.

CLOTHES NOT ENOUGH

"They should run for political office and do things like that. Clothes, cosmetics and that sort of thing are all very well, but the world has many problems and women should help solve them."

The authoress, 55-year-old wife of a McGill University professor of politics, said she would have been a politician if she had not chosen writing for a career.

"I would run for the Labor Party," she added thoughtfully. "I have always been interested in the welfare of people once oppressed. But unfortunately the Labor Party is not so dynamic as it used to be."

"It's All Right With Me."

And again, the haunting quality for "Summertime" to send chills along the spine straight from some deep south bayou.

All leaves but one of the singer's book were the old standards, though each had the stamp of her modern interpretation. The exception was an Errol Garner original, "Misty," which was just that—a whispery, blue wraith of delicate tone and could well serve as a signature for the Vancouver miss.

Eleanor captivated her audience in three spotlight appearances, each time recalled for a total of eight encores on such favorites as "Tenderly," "September Song," "St. Louis Blues" and "Blue Moon."

Whether a soul-shattering blues tempo or a happy upbeat, the music seemed to take second place to the singer's magnetic spirit, which went undampened despite a quarter-hour wait on wet street for the club's door to open an hour before the show.

HUSHED ROOM

After singing six extra numbers to a demanding house, her final appearance, Eleanor solemnly begged to finish with her own request—in keeping with the Easter theme, and with barely audible accompaniment, by Buddy and bassist Doug Peaker, she sang "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" to a hushed room.

As she began, only the tinkles of ice in tumblers was heard to distract, but when she finished, reverence became an ovation, with more than 200 people clapping for yet another song.

Miss Collins opened the program with her bouncy, swinging version of "Almost Like Being in Love," switching to the enchanting ballad "But Not For Me," two numbers which set the mood for the other 20 titles she sang.

Although famous for her moody blues, she does equal justice to the other end of the spectrum and can pack a lot of joy into a thing like "Honeysuckle Rose," which she came near to belting, midway through the second set.

Her five feet, one-and-a-half put a solid rhythm also into "Too Close for Comfort" and "It's All Right With Me."

U.S. School Band Here Next Week

A 60-member American high school band will visit Victoria next week.

The Oak Harbor High School Band of Oak Harbor, Washington, on a goodwill tour, will give two concerts during its visit here.

The band will play at the Samscha Auditorium, Sidney, at 8 p.m. Monday, and at the Belmont High School at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The players will arrive in Sidney from Anacortes at 4:15 p.m. Monday, and will be the guests of the Belmont Junior and Senior High School Bands.

Belmont High School students have arranged to take the visitors on a tour of the Legislative Buildings and Thunderbird Park. They will also be taken for a swim at the Crystal Garden.

Easter Travellers Forced to Stand

The first "heavy travel" holiday weekend since the CPR curtailed Victoria-Vancouver steamers is straining services to the limit.

Situation was worsened for the Easter weekend by the fact CPSS Princess of Nanaimo was not able to go back on the run for the peak period after annual refit.

She is still at Belleville St. refit jetty, awaiting engine repairs.

Princess of Nanaimo has had recurrent machinery trouble since being put into service in 1951.

With only one round trip Vancouver-Victoria on Thursday, and no night steamer, the Vancouver-Nanaimo ships were jam-packed.

Many passengers found no place to sit during the 2½-hour crossing. Long before sailing time, signs were posted stating no cabins were available.

One passenger said she counted herself lucky to find a corner where she could sit on her suitcase.

Black Ball Ferries operating out of Horseshoe Bay on the mainland and Departure Bay near Nanaimo managed to handle all traffic Thursday by operating an extra run after midnight. But most travellers during the peak Thursday period had to wait at least two hours—the time between scheduled trips—before going aboard.

SAME ON MONDAY

As many as 80 cars were lined up for two hours.

Black Ball expects a similar situation Monday.

Traffic-to-Seattle is now via Washington State Ferries, operating between Sidney and Anacortes since the CPR suspended its Victoria-Seattle connection for the winter.

Miss Brittain, in town on the leg of a month-long tour of the U.S. and Canada, said "most women these days are as intelligent as the men and should not be content to stay buried at home."

After singing six extra numbers to a demanding house, her final appearance, Eleanor solemnly begged to finish with her own request—in keeping with the Easter theme, and with barely audible accompaniment, by Buddy and bassist Doug Peaker, she sang "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" to a hushed room.

As she began, only the tinkles of ice in tumblers was heard to distract, but when she finished, reverence became an ovation, with more than 200 people clapping for yet another song.

Miss Collins opened the program with her bouncy, swinging version of "Almost Like Being in Love," switching to the enchanting ballad "But Not For Me," two numbers which set the mood for the other 20 titles she sang.

Although famous for her moody blues, she does equal justice to the other end of the spectrum and can pack a lot of joy into a thing like "Honeysuckle Rose," which she came near to belting, midway through the second set.

Her five feet, one-and-a-half put a solid rhythm also into "Too Close for Comfort" and "It's All Right With Me."

U.S. School Band Here Next Week

A 60-member American high school band will visit Victoria next week.

The players will arrive in Sidney from Anacortes at 4:15 p.m. Monday, and will be the guests of the Belmont Junior and Senior High School Bands.

Belmont High School students have arranged to take the visitors on a tour of the Legislative Buildings and Thunderbird Park. They will also be taken for a swim at the Crystal Garden.

FINAL ★★ BULLETINS

Nanaimo Wins Peewee Hockey Title

NANAIMO (AP) — Nanaimo won the Pacific Coast peewee hockey championship today, defeating New Westminster 12-8 in a two-game total point series here.

Vancouver Wins 5-Pin Team Bowling

VANCOUVER — The Vancouver men's team today won the men's team championship in the Western Canada five-pin bowling tournament here, scoring 10,052 points to defeat Calgary by 69 pins.

Man Remanded on Murder Charge

BURNS LAKE, B.C. (CP) — John Baptiste Prince of Burns Lake was remanded for one week when he appeared today before Magistrate L. G. Saul in a preliminary hearing of a charge of murder.

Prince was charged with the slaying of a logger in this Cariboo community in north-central B.C. RCMP refused to release the name of the slain man or details of the case.

Indonesian Cops Canada 'Bird' Title

QUEBEC (CP) — Tan Joe Hock of Indonesia today combined a sparkling defensive game with a bag full of attacking shots to win the men's open singles title at the Canadian badminton championships with a 15-4, 15-10 victory over Charoen Wadhanasir of Thailand.

Judy Devlin of Baltimore defeated her sister Sue to win the women's open singles, 11-1, 12-10.

TURNED INTO INFERNO

4 Die as Slide Crushes House

REVELSTOKE, B.C. (CP) — A mother and her 10-month-old baby who fled from their home because it was threatened by a landslide died Friday with an elderly couple when the slide struck the house in which they took refuge.

The four victims, Mrs. Herman Schuetze and her infant son Eric, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pletsch were burned to death when the furnace of the Pletsch home burst as the house was upturned by the massive slide.

Mrs. Schuetze's husband was one of 10 men working nearby who saw the 100-yard slide roar 200 yards down Mount Revelstoke overlooking this Rocky Mountain town. The Pletsch home burst into flames moments after it was toppled.

OCCUPANTS TRAPPED

The slide turned the home on its side, trapping the four occupants inside. Volunteer firemen, who were unable to put out the blaze, said the victims survived the impact but died in the flames.

The Schuetze home was untouched by the slide.

Mr. Schuetze and his fellow workers ran to the overturned house and attempted to get inside but the flames forced them back. Volunteer firemen and 200 residents of the town, 440 miles east of Vancouver, went to the scene but were too late to help.

The 100-yard-wide slide of snow, earth and rocks swept workman Nick Brunetti down the slope, known as CPR Hill. He escaped uninjured.

A public works official visited the Schuetze home after a resident of the neighborhood said the hillside apparently had been weakened by recent heavy rain. He found pressure threatening the basement.

FAMILIES EVACUATED

Fifteen families living in the neighborhood were evacuated following the tragedy and a highways department crew examined the area to determine whether the Trans-Canada Highway had been weakened and assess the likelihood of further slides.

Police said surface water released by the first slide was

Jailbreak By Cubans

PINAR DEL RIO, Cuba (AP) — Four former soldiers of the Cuban Army who were awaiting execution as alleged war criminals escaped from the military jail here early today.

One of the four, Lieut. Mario Capo Aldecoa, was captured after a gunfight with pursuing troops. The others got away with machine-guns and other arms.

$3 Million Damage In Quebec Blaze

BLACKPOOL, Que. (UPI) — Customs officials estimated the toll at more than $3 million today following a Friday night fire that destroyed 10 loaded trailer trucks and a transport company's warehouse at this border community about 40 miles from Montreal.

Firemen from LaColle, Que., and Champlain, and Rouses Point, N.Y., teamed with local crews to fight the three-hour fire that wrecked a 900-foot building.

Modern-day pilgrims carrying a replica of the cross from Nanaimo to Victoria were south of Duncan and "still going strong" at noon today. Called the "Pacific Cross" it is being carried on the 80-mile journey by representatives of the Newman Alumni Club, Newman Club, and Nanaimo and Victoria Catholic Youth organizations. Pilgrims are due at St. Andrew's Cathedral Sunday at 11 a.m.

REDS CRUSH REVOLT

Tibetans Under Military Rule

KALIMPONG, India (Reuters) — The Chinese Communists today dissolved local governments throughout Tibet and imposed military rule as they consolidated their positions after crushing the Lhasa uprising against their regime.

Peiping radio heard in Tokyo announced that "the preparatory committee for the Tibet autonomous region" hereafter will "exercise the functions and powers of the Tibetan local government." The shakeup was announced by Premier Chou En-lai.

This committee, as in all so-called autonomous or self-governing regions of Red China, will take its orders from the military jail here early today.

One of the four, Lieut. Mario Capo Aldecoa, was captured after a gunfight with pursuing troops. The others got away with machine-guns and other arms.

The broadcast announced the setting up of the Panchen Lama — pro-Communist rival of the Dalai Lama as head of a new regime in Tibet.

Peiping Radio, admitting revolt in the Himalayan kingdom for the first time, announced the abolition of the previous Tibet government nominally headed by the 23-year-old Dalai Lama.

The Panchen Lama and Dalai Lama are not related. The Panchen Lama was selected by a splinter group of Buddhist mountaineers in the Chinese Province of Tsinghai in 1949, when it was under Nationalist control, but he soon fell into Communist hands. He and the Dalai Lama finally were "reconciled" and to a certain degree shared the domestic leadership of Tibet, although the Dalai Lama continued up to today to be recognized even by Peiping as the No. 1 Buddhist.

The broadcast confirmed what various sources in India, Formosa and Japan have been

Reds Pour Weapons Into Iraq

(Editor's Note: UPI Middle East correspondent Larry Collins was expelled from Baghdad Thursday with two other American correspondents. He reports that the Soviet Union is pouring tanks and arms into Iraq as part of a major expansion of the Iraqi army.)

BY LARRY COLLINS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Soviet Union is pouring tanks and arms into Iraq for a major expansion of the Iraqi army by Communist-backed Premier Abd Karim Kassem.

The premier already has put one new, understrength division into the field since he took power in a coup last July, and plans for a second already have been completed.

The new divisions were scheduled to receive Soviet arms, which have been arriving steadily during the past eight months. The most recent shipment arrived at Basra last weekend and included 34 tanks.

SIXTH SHIPMENT

It was the sixth Soviet shipload of arms since the coup and brought to 150 the number of Russian tanks now being readied for use by the army.

This is double the number of tanks in the late King Faisal's pro-Western army and enough to outfit a full Soviet-style

Blockade Studied

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Evening Star said today the United States is considering a naval blockade of Russia in the Baltic and Black Seas areas if the Soviet Union cuts off the West's access to Berlin.

They had a summit meeting one Good Friday too.

Seems th' Reds ain't satisfied with gittin' China. They want Tibet t' boot.

Long Journey Ends Sunday

Symbolizing the journey of Christ to Calvary, 21 modern pilgrims are carrying a replica of the cross 80 miles from Nanaimo to Victoria this Easter weekend.

Pilgrims will stay at Langford tonight and rise at dawn for the last leg of their journey into Victoria.

At noon today the travellers were south of Duncan and "in good working order" on the trip which is expected to end Sunday at 11 a.m. outside St. Andrew's Catholic Cathedral here.

In a "religious exercise, rather than a spectacle," the representatives of various Catholic organizations and one Protestant limped determinedly south on the last stages of their marathon trek.

Spokesman for the party said that no names were being given.

Faithful Gather

JERUSALEM (AP) — Easter Week ceremonies today approached a joyous climax with solemn Holy Saturday rites in the Basilica of the Holy Sepulchre at the altar near the scene of Christ's burial and resurrection.

Hundreds of pilgrims and tourists crowded the church within the old walled city of Jerusalem.

Outside, warm spring sunlight flooded the basilica courtyard as Christians of many denominations from all corners of the globe prepared to celebrate the anniversary of Christ's resurrection.

The Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, Most. Rev. Alberto Gori, entered the church at 6:30 a.m. to preside at the rites of the blessing of the fire — symbolic of Christ as the light of the world — at the stone of anointment where Christ's body is said to have been anointed after his death on nearby Calvary.

The Pope added that he prayed also for those Roman Catholic bishops, priests, nuns and faithful — the most dear to us of all who, deprived of their families, their homeland, of liberty itself, are living and painful witness of the evils which afflict the human race because of the lack of true peace and its proper fruits.

The Pontiff speaking from his apartment in the Vatican Palace to an audience of millions over radio and television, declared:

"We offer a prayer that peace, the daughter of gentleness and goodwill, may establish a lasting rule among the nations made ever anxious by the clouds which repeatedly darken the horizon."

The Pope added that he prayed also for those Roman Catholic bishops, priests, nuns and faithful — the most dear to us of all who, deprived of their families, their homeland, of liberty itself, are living and painful witness of the evils which afflict the human race because of the lack of true peace and its proper fruits."

ASKS 'FAIR DEAL' FROM PM

Smallwood Offers to Quit

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Smallwood said today that if Prime Minister Diefenbaker will start treating Newfoundland "fairly and decently" and give it "a fair deal" he will resign when the legislature reopens Tuesday.

He said he made the offer on the assumption that Mr. Diefenbaker's actions in connection with the loggers' strike and on the limitation of financial assistance were prompted by a grudge against Mr. Smallwood.

"If Mr. Diefenbaker is acting toward us the way he is, including a grudge against me," Mr. Smallwood declared, "I now make this offer through The Canadian Press that if he'll treat Newfoundland fairly and decently and give us a fair deal I'll resign on Tuesday."

The announcement said the dinner was cancelled because of the federal government's grants decision which violated the terms of confederation and "thus left nothing to celebrate."

For the last two or three years, the premier said, his
